IBM Cloud Pak for Integration V2021.2 Administration Sample Questions (Q112-Q117):

NEW QUESTION # 112

Which statement is true regarding the DataPower Gateway operator?

- A. The operator creates the DataPowerService as a ReplicaSet.
- B. The operator creates the DataPowerService as a DaemonSet.
- C. The operator creates the DataPowerService as a StatefulSet.
- D. The operator creates the DataPowerService as a Deployment.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 113

If a CI/CD pipeline needs to pull an image from a remote image repository, what OpenShift component is required in order to securely access a remote image repository?

- A. API Key
- B. ConfigMap
- C. TLS Certificate
- D. Secret

Answer: D

Explanation:

In Red Hat OpenShift, when a CI/CD pipeline (such as an OpenShift Pipeline based on Tekton) needs to pull an image from a remote image repository (e.g., Quay, Docker Hub, or a private registry), it must authenticate securely. The required OpenShift component for securely storing and providing credentials is a Secret.

Why is "Secret" the Correct Answer?

A Secret stores authentication credentials, such as username/password, OAuth tokens, or registry credentials.

OpenShift supports the `kubernetes.io/dockerconfigjson` Secret type, which is used for storing Docker or container registry credentials.

The Secret can be referenced in ServiceAccounts to allow Pods and CI/CD pipelines to pull images securely.

Example of creating a Secret for a remote image repository:

oc create secret docker-registry my-registry-secret \
--docker-server=<registry-url> \
--docker-username=<your-username> \
--docker-password=<your-password> \
--docker-email=<your-email>

The Secret can then be linked to a ServiceAccount for use in the CI/CD pipeline:

oc secrets link default my-registry-secret --for=pull

Why the Other Options Are Incorrect?

Option

Explanation:

Correct?

A . ConfigMap

☐ Incorrect - A ConfigMap stores non-sensitive configuration data (e.g., environment variables, properties files) but not credentials.

B . TLS Certificate

☐ Incorrect - A TLS certificate is used for secure communication (e.g., HTTPS encryption), but it does not handle authentication for pulling images.

D . API Key

☐ Incorrect - While an API key might be used for authentication, OpenShift does not directly use API keys for image pulling; it relies on Secrets instead.

Final answer:

☐ C. Secret

NEW QUESTION # 115

Which statement is true about enabling open tracing for API Connect?

- A. API debug data is made available in OpenShift cluster logging.
- B. Trace data can be viewed in Analytics dashboards
- C. Only APIs using API Gateway can be traced in the Operations Dashboard.
- D. This feature is only available in non-production deployment profiles

Answer: C

Explanation:

Open Tracing in IBM API Connect allows for distributed tracing of API calls across the system, helping administrators analyze performance bottlenecks and troubleshoot issues. However, this capability is specifically designed to work with APIs that utilize the API Gateway.

Option A (Correct Answer): IBM API Connect integrates with OpenTracing for API Gateway, allowing the tracing of API requests in the Operations Dashboard. This provides deep visibility into request flows and latencies.

Option B (Incorrect): API debug data is not directly made available in OpenShift cluster logging. Instead, API tracing data is captured using OpenTracing-compatible tools.

Option C (Incorrect): OpenTracing is available for all deployment profiles, including production, not just non-production environments.

Option D (Incorrect): Trace data is not directly visible in Analytics dashboards but rather in the Operations Dashboard where administrators can inspect API request traces.
