ISACA Certified Information Security Manager Sample Questions (Q865-Q870):

NEW QUESTION # 865

An organization has learned of a security breach at another company that utilizes similar technology. The FIRST thing the information security manager should do is:

- A. report to senior management that the organization is not affected.
- B. assess the likelihood of incidents from the reported cause.
- C. remind staff that no similar security breaches have taken place.
- D. discontinue the use of the vulnerable technology.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The security manager should first assess the likelihood of a similar incident occurring, based on available information. Discontinuing the use of the vulnerable technology would not necessarily be practical since it would likely be needed to support the business. Reporting to senior management that the organization is not affected due to controls already in place would be premature until the information security manager can first assess the impact of the incident. Until this has been researched, it is not certain that no similar security breaches have taken place.

NEW QUESTION # 866

Following an unsuccessful denial of service (DoS) attack, identified weaknesses should be:

- A. Noted and re-examined later if similar weaknesses are found
- B. Documented in security awareness programs
- C. Tracked and reported on until their final resolution
- D. Quickly resolved and eliminated regardless of cost

Answer: C

Explanation:

Any weaknesses identified, even after an unsuccessful attack, should be tracked and reported until they are fully resolved. This ensures accountability, remediation, and prevention of future incidents. Ignoring or delaying action increases exposure to future threats.

"All vulnerabilities must be tracked, assigned for remediation, and closed out following proper documentation and validation."
- CISM Review Manual 15th Edition, Chapter 4: Incident Management, Section: Remediation and Lessons Learned ISACA's guidance in the practice questions clearly recommends formal tracking and resolution of vulnerabilities as the best practice for ongoing security management.

NEW QUESTION # 867

A critical vulnerability is found on a server hosting multiple applications owned by different business units. One of the business units finds its hosted application will not function with the patch applied and chooses to accept the risk. Which of the following should be the information security manager's NEXT course of action?

- A. Consult the incident management process.
- B. Update the information security policy.
- C. Update the risk register.
- D. Develop a business case for compensating controls.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 868

Which of the following is the MOST effective approach for integrating security into application development?

- A. Defining security requirements
- B. Performing vulnerability scans
- C. Developing security models in parallel
- D. Including security in user acceptance testing sign-off

Answer: A

Explanation:

Section: INFORMATION SECURITY PROGRAM DEVELOPMENT

NEW QUESTION # 869

A data loss prevention (DLP) tool has flagged personally identifiable information (PII) during transmission. Which of the following should the information security manager do FIRST?

- A. Disable the data loss prevention (DLP) policy
- B. Escalate the issue to senior management
- C. Notify authorities and the cyber insurance company
- D. Validate the scope and impact with the business process owner

Answer: D
