NEW QUESTION # 256
An administrator is creating a new Dynamic User Group to quarantine users for suspicious activity. Which two objects can Dynamic User Groups use as match conditions for group membership? (Choose two.)

- A. Static tags
- B. Source IP address
- C. Dynamic tags
- D. Ldap attributes

Answer: C,D

Explanation:
Dynamic tags: Dynamic User Groups can use dynamic tags as match conditions. These tags are assigned based on specific conditions, such as security events or alerts, and can dynamically adjust group membership based on user activity. This is a powerful feature for automatically updating the group based on criteria like suspicious behavior or security incidents.
LDAP attributes: Dynamic User Groups can also use LDAP attributes for membership criteria.
These attributes come from the user's directory information and can be used to group users based on properties such as user roles, departments, or security levels, providing flexibility in defining group membership.
