Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 109

What behavior is expected when a service is created with the following command:

'docker service create --publish 8000:80 nginx'

- A. Only a single node in the cluster will listen on port 80 and forward to port 8080 in the container.
- B. All nodes in the cluster will listen on port 80 and forward to port 8080 in the container.
- C. All nodes in the cluster will listen on port 8080 and forward to port 80 in the container.
- D. Only a single node in the cluster will listen on port 8080 and forward to port 80 in the container.

NEW QUESTION # 110

The following Docker Compose file is deployed as a stack:

```
version: '3.1'
services:
  app:
    image: app:1.0
    healthcheck:
      test: "curl --fail http://localhost/health || exit 1"
      interval: 10s
      timeout: 5s
      retries: 3
```

Is this statement correct about this health check definition?

Solution. Health checks test for app health ten seconds apart. Three failed health checks transition the container into "unhealthy" status.

- A. No
- B. Yes

Answer: B

Explanation:

Explanation

The statement is correct. In the provided Docker Compose file, a health check is defined for the service "app".

It uses curl to perform a health check on the application every 10 seconds (as specified by the "interval" parameter). If it fails three times (as specified by the "retries" parameter), then the container is marked as unhealthy. A health check is a way of checking the health of a running container and applying actions based on the result¹. It can be used to monitor the status of the service and restart the container if it becomes unhealthy². References:

NEW QUESTION # 111

A company's security policy specifies that development and production containers must run on separate nodes in a given Swarm cluster.

Can this be used to schedule containers to meet the security policy requirements?

Solution: resource reservation

- A. Yes
- B. No

Answer: B

Explanation:

Resource reservation is a feature that allows you to specify the amount of CPU and memory resources that a service or a container needs. This helps the scheduler to place the service or the container on a node that has enough available resources. However, resource reservation does not control which node the service or the container runs on, nor does it enforce any separation or isolation between different services or containers. Therefore, resource reservation cannot be used to schedule containers to meet the security policy requirements.
