NEW QUESTION # 160

In Huawei's SD-WAN solution, to reduce the impact of packet loss on user services, you are advised to enable Forward Error Correction (FEC) for all traffic.

- A. TRUE
- B. FALSE

Answer: B

Explanation:

While Forward Error Correction (FEC) is a valuable feature in Huawei's SD-WAN solution for mitigating packet loss, it is not recommended to enable FEC for all traffic. FEC introduces additional overhead by transmitting redundant data, which can consume bandwidth and degrade performance for non-critical traffic.

Instead, FEC should be selectively enabled for sensitive applications (e.g., real-time voice and video) where packet loss has a significant impact. This approach balances performance and resource utilization effectively.
