NEW QUESTION # 473

The project board is reviewing the project initiation documentation (PID) to decide whether the project should continue or close.

What should the project board ensure the PID is aligned with?

- A. The business objectives
- B. The business' existing governance practices
- C. The ways of working used on previous projects
- D. The project's delivery method

Answer: A

Explanation:

When the project board reviews the Project Initiation Documentation (PID), it is essential to ensure that the PID is aligned with the business objectives. The PID should encapsulate the project's definition, including the reasons for undertaking the project, the benefits expected, and how it aligns with the broader business goals.

Ensuring this alignment helps validate that the project remains viable and worthwhile as it progresses.
