- B. To deliver Fit-to-Standard workshops in a system conversion scenario
- C. To deploy a preconfigured landscape for exploration
- D. To test customizations prior to transporting to the quality system

- E. To transfer configurations to the productive landscape

Answer: A,C,D

Explanation:

The SAP S/4HANA Fully Activated Appliance is a preconfigured, cloud-based system provided by SAP for exploration and testing purposes. Let's evaluate its uses:

- * A. To deliver Fit-to-Standard workshops in a system conversion scenario: This is incorrect. Fit-to-Standard workshops in a system conversion use a customer-specific sandbox system reflecting the existing landscape (e.g., ECC), not the Fully Activated Appliance, which is preconfigured with Best Practices for new implementations.
- * B. To transfer configurations to the productive landscape: This is incorrect. The Fully Activated Appliance is a standalone environment for exploration and testing, not part of the productive landscape or transport path (e.g., DEV-QAS-PRD).
- * C. To test customizations prior to transporting to the quality system: This is correct. The appliance can be used to prototype and test customizations (e.g., extensions, configurations) in a safe, preconfigured environment before formal development and transport to the quality system.
- * D. To deploy a preconfigured landscape for exploration: This is correct. The appliance provides a ready-to-use SAP S/4HANA system with activated Best Practices, ideal for customers and consultants to explore functionality and processes.
- * E. To deliver Fit-to-Standard workshops in a new implementation scenario: This is correct. For new implementations, the appliance is used during the Explore phase to demonstrate SAP Best Practices in Fit-to-Standard workshops, helping align customer requirements with standard processes.

In summary, activities for the SAP S/4HANA Fully Activated Appliance include C (To test customizations prior to transporting to the quality system), D (To deploy a preconfigured landscape for exploration), and E (To deliver Fit-to-Standard workshops in a new implementation scenario).

In the SAP Activate methodology, the Explore phase is where Fit-to-Standard analysis and design workshops take place. This phase focuses on validating the standard SAP processes against the customer's business requirements and identifying any necessary adjustments.

Option A: Realize

This option is incorrect. The Realize phase involves configuring the system based on the outcomes of the Explore phase and preparing it for testing and deployment.

Option B: Prepare

This option is incorrect. The Prepare phase includes initial planning and preparation activities but does not involve conducting Fit-to-Standard workshops.

Option A: Business process flows

This option is incorrect. While the Roadmap Viewer provides guidance on implementation tasks, detailed business process flows are typically found in other SAP documentation or modeling tools.

Option B: Solution process setup instructions

This option is incorrect. Specific setup instructions are usually provided in configuration guides or the SAP Best Practices Explorer, not primarily in the Roadmap Viewer.

Option C: Tasks and deliverables to complete each phase

This option is correct. The Roadmap Viewer outlines the tasks and deliverables required in each phase of the implementation project, helping teams manage and track progress effectively.

Option D: Clean Core quality gates

This option is correct. The Roadmap Viewer includes quality gates, such as the Clean Core principle, to ensure that customizations do not hinder future upgrades and maintain system integrity.
