NEW QUESTION # 20

A family foundation wants to use Salesforce to track its funding of dozens of projects using a Campaign for each project. The foundation has a goal of funds to disperse, and it is important that the foundation can track year over year goals for each project. What should a consultant recommend for the foundation to track progress?

- A. Create a custom object for year and a custom object for project to track.
- B. Create a Campaign hierarchy for project and year.
- C. Create a process that populates custom fields for each year and project on Opportunities.
- D. Create reports with bucketing and filters.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Creating a Campaign hierarchy is the most effective way to track funding for projects and monitor year-over-year goals in Salesforce. Campaign hierarchies allow for organizing campaigns in a structured manner, making it easy to roll up data and track progress across different levels. Here's how to set this up:

* Create Parent Campaigns for Years:

* For each year, create a parent campaign. For example, "2023 Projects" and "2024 Projects".

* Create Sub-Campaigns for Projects:

* Under each yearly parent campaign, create sub-campaigns for each project. For instance, "2023 Projects" can have sub-campaigns like "Project A", "Project B", etc.

* Link Sub-Campaigns to Parent Campaigns:

* Use the Parent Campaign lookup field to link each project campaign to its respective year campaign. This establishes the hierarchy.

* Track Goals and Progress:

* Use Campaign fields to set goals and track actual amounts. Fields like "Campaign Member Status", "Amount Raised", and custom fields can be used to track the funding and progress.

* Use roll-up summary fields to aggregate data from sub-campaigns to parent campaigns.

* Reporting and Dashboards:

* Create reports and dashboards to monitor the progress of each project and year-over-year comparisons. Use the Campaign Hierarchy feature in reports to show aggregated data.

By setting up a Campaign hierarchy, the foundation can easily track the funding, manage goals, and compare progress year-over-year.
