CertNexus CyberSec First Responder Sample Questions (Q157-Q162):

NEW QUESTION # 157

A security analyst needs to capture network traffic from a compromised Mac host. They attempt to execute the `tcpdump` command using their general user account but continually receive an "Operation Not Permitted" error.

Use of which of the following commands will allow the analyst to capture traffic using `tcpdump` successfully?

- A. sudo
- B. chroot
- C. netstat
- D. lsof
- E. chmod

Answer: A

Explanation:

To capture network traffic using `tcpdump` on a Unix-like system, administrative privileges are typically required. The `sudo` command allows a user to execute commands with superuser (root) privileges, which would bypass the permission restrictions encountered with the general user account. Without `sudo`, the analyst would not have the necessary permissions to run `tcpdump`.

NEW QUESTION # 158

While planning a vulnerability assessment on a computer network, which of the following is essential? (Choose two.)

- A. Identifying critical assets
- B. Installing antivirus software
- C. Establishing scope
- D. Identifying exposures
- E. Running scanning tools

NEW QUESTION # 159

Which of the following backup strategies will result in the shortest backup time during weekdays and use the least amount of storage space but incur the longest restore time?

- A. Mirror backups on a daily basis.
- B. Full backups on a daily basis.
- C. Full weekly backup with daily incremental backups.
- D. Full weekly backup with daily differential backups.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The full weekly backup with daily incremental backups strategy results in the shortest backup time during weekdays and uses the least amount of storage space because it only backs up data that has changed since the last backup. However, the restore time can be longer because multiple incremental backups need to be restored in sequence before the most recent data can be recovered.

Which of the following tools can help to detect suspicious or unauthorized changes to critical system configuration files?
