- D. To transform business data into actionable insights

Answer: C,D

Explanation:

The primary objectives of Process Mining are to provide transparency into actual process execution and enable data-driven improvements. The SAP Signavio documentation states:

* Option A (To reveal the current state of processes in a system): Process Mining analyzes event logs to reconstruct and visualize how processes are actually performed, revealing inefficiencies, deviations, or bottlenecks.

* Option C (To transform business data into actionable insights): By analyzing process data, Process Mining generates insights that guide process optimization, cost reduction, or compliance improvements, making data actionable for business decisions.

* Option B (To create reports for analysis) is incorrect because, while reports can be generated, the goal of Process Mining is broader, focusing on process transparency and improvement, not just reporting.
