CompTIA PenTest+ Certification Sample Questions (Q94-Q99):

NEW QUESTION # 94

Which of the following is the most effective method for ensuring a payload or exploit will run regardless of the operating system version?

- A. Shared objects
- B. Static compilation
- C. Dynamic binary
- D. Dynamic libraries

Answer: B

Explanation:

Static compilation ensures that all the necessary libraries and dependencies are bundled with the payload or exploit at the time of compilation. This eliminates reliance on the target system's library versions or availability, making it more likely that the payload will run regardless of the operating system version. This aligns with CompTIA Pentest+ objectives under exploit development and scripting to enhance exploit reliability.

NEW QUESTION # 95

A potential reason for communicating with the client point of contact during a penetration test is to provide resolution if a testing component crashes a system or service and leaves them unavailable for both legitimate users and further testing. Which of the following best describes this concept?

- A. Remediation
- B. Retesting
- C. Collision detection
- D. De-escalation

Answer: A

Explanation:

Communicating with the client point of contact during a penetration test, especially when a testing component crashes a system or service, is crucial for remediation. Remediation involves the process of correcting or mitigating vulnerabilities that have been identified during the test. In the context of a system or service becoming unavailable, it's essential to promptly address and resolve the issue to restore availability and ensure the continuity of legitimate business operations. This communication ensures that the client is aware of the incident and can work together with the penetration tester to implement corrective actions, thereby minimizing the impact on the business and further testing activities.

NEW QUESTION # 96

A penetration tester is looking for a vulnerability that enables attackers to open doors via a specialized TCP service that is used for a physical access control system. The service exists on more than 100 different hosts, so the tester would like to automate the assessment. Identification requires the penetration tester to:

Have a full TCP connection
Send a "hello" payload
Wait for a response
Send a string of characters longer than 16 bytes
Which of the following approaches would BEST support the objective?

- A. Create a script in the Lua language and use it with NSE.
- B. Employ an OpenVAS simple scan against the TCP port of the host.
- C. Perform a credentialled scan with Nessus.
- D. Run nmap -Pn -sV -script vuln <IP address>.

Answer: CNEW QUESTION # 97

A penetration tester performs the following command:

curl -I -http2 https://www.comptia.org

Which of the following snippets of output will the tester MOST likely receive?

HTTP/1.1 200
x-frame-options: SAMEORIGIN
