Salesforce Administer, Extend, and Automate Salesforce Sample Questions (Q68-Q73):

NEW QUESTION # 68

The accounting team at Universal Containers is looking to roll out two new custom objects: a parent Invoice object and a child Payment object. Whenever a Payment record is created, the Invoice object should be updated to reflect the current outstanding value of the Invoice.

What should the administrator do to build this functionality?

- A. Create a lookup-relationship on the Payment with a Roll-up Summary field on the Invoice.
- B. Create a master-detail relationship on the Payment and a workflow cross object field update.
- C. Create a master-detail relationship on the Payment with a Roll-up Summary field on the Invoice.
- D. Create a lookup-relationship on the Payment and a workflow cross object field update.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Creating a master-detail relationship on the Payment with a Roll-up Summary field on the Invoice will build this functionality. A master-detail relationship creates a parent-child relationship between two objects, where the child records inherit the sharing and security settings of their parent. A Roll-up Summary field calculates values from related child records, such as count, sum, min, or max. In this case, the Roll-up Summary field on the Invoice can calculate the sum of all Payments related to it and subtract it from the Invoice amount to get the current outstanding value. NEW QUESTION # 69

Cloud Kicks has two record-triggered flows on the same object. One flow creates a child record when criteria are met. The second record-triggered flow is based on criteria to check if the child record exists and updates a field. The field on the child record that needs to be updated is still null after the second record trigger.

What should the administrator do to resolve this issue?

- A. Combine the two flows into one with checks to see which part of the flow needs to be run.
- B. Have the record-triggered flows fire on create or edit to update the field.
- C. Make a new record-triggered flow on the child object to update the field on the parent record.
- D. flows into schedule flows and have them update the field.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Flows are tools that automate business processes by collecting data and performing actions in your org or an external system. Flows can be triggered by various events such as record creation, updates, or invocations from other processes or flows. Flows can also have decision elements that evaluate conditions and determine which path to follow in the flow. By combining the two flows into one with decision elements, the administrator can ensure that the flow runs in the correct order and updates the field on the child record after it is created by the first flow.
