How can you leverage Spark Streaming for real-time data processing and analytics?

- A. By defining a streaming DataFrame with a window function.
- B. Both A and B.
- C. By utilizing Structured Streaming with Kafka as the source and sink.

- D. By implementing custom logic for data ingestion, transformation, and output.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Spark Streaming offers two primary approaches: defining streaming DataFrames with window functions for micro-batching and utilizing Structured Streaming for end-to-end processing pipelines with sources like Kafka.

NEW QUESTION # 91

You're facing a schema mismatch between a Spark DataFrame and a Hive table when trying to write the DataFrame to the table. What are the potential causes and how can you address them?

- A. Use HiveQL's ALTER TABLE statement to modify the Hive table schema
- B. Ignore the schema mismatch and write the data anyway, potentially leading to data corruption
- C. Modify the Spark DataFrame schema to match the Hive table schema manually
- D. Leverage Spark SQL's schema inference capabilities to automatically adjust the DataFrame schema

Answer: D

Explanation:

Ignoring the mismatch A can lead to errors. Manually modifying the DataFrame schema B might be error-prone. Option D modifies the Hive table, potentially impacting other applications. Spark SQL can often infer the schema from the DataFrame's data types, providing a convenient and reliable way to address schema mismatches.

NEW QUESTION # 92

Which of the following is true about the Airflow Webserver?

A It schedules and executes tasks.

- A. It is used exclusively for monitoring pipeline logs.
- B. It stores metadata about DAGs and their execution status.
- C. It provides a user interface for DAG configuration and monitoring.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Airflow Webserver provides a web-based user interface for managing and monitoring DAGs, including their configuration, execution, and logs. It does not schedule or execute tasks (the role of the Scheduler and Executor), nor does it store metadata (the role of the Metadata Database).

NEW QUESTION # 93

You're building an Airflow ETL pipeline that involves data validation checks. How can you integrate these checks into the pipeline and handle potential failures?

- A. Configure the DAG to send email notifications upon validation failures for manual intervention.
- B. Leverage XCom to share the validation results with downstream tasks for further processing.
- C. Implement the validation checks within custom Python operators and raise exceptions upon failure, triggering downstream tasks to handle the error.
- D. Use the FailoverOperator to automatically skip downstream tasks if the validation check fails.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Option A is the most appropriate approach for integrating data validation checks within the pipeline. By raising exceptions upon failure, you can control the flow of the DAG and trigger appropriate actions based on the validation results.
