101. Frage

Life insurance company has satellite offices in various countries. Each satellite office has a work queue. Company policy requires that life insurance underwriting be signed to offices based on the policy owner's residential address. Which routing approach supports this requirement?

- A. Route the assignment to a specific underwriter based on business logic.
- B. Route the assignment to the correct work queue by using an authority matrix.
- C. Route the assignment to the correct work queue by using a reporting structure.
- D. Route the assignment to the correct work queue based on business logic.

Antwort: D

Begründung:

To route life insurance underwriting assignments to the correct satellite office based on the policy owner's residential address, using business logic is the most appropriate approach. This approach involves:

* Define Routing Rules: Create decision rules or decision tables that map the policy owner's residential address to the corresponding satellite office's work queue.

* Implement Business Logic: Configure the routing step in the case type to use these decision rules. The business logic will determine the correct work queue based on the address.

* Route to Work Queue: The assignment is routed to the work queue of the satellite office that corresponds to the policy owner's residential address.

This method ensures that each assignment is accurately directed to the appropriate office based on predefined business logic.
