Answer: A,B

NEW QUESTION # 47

You are asked to add a new VLAN in your network. You need to reference the same VLAN in multiple places in the configuration of switches and APs in your site.

Which Mist configuration tool will enable you to accomplish this task?

- A. switch template
- B. site switch configuration
- C. site variables
- D. WLAN template

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Mist Cloud, site variables are used to store and reference common configuration values (such as VLAN IDs, subnet addresses, or gateway IPs) that are reused across multiple devices and templates within a site.

"Site variables allow administrators to define reusable configuration parameters that can be referenced in multiple templates or device configurations, ensuring consistency and reducing manual errors." Option A: Incorrect - applies configuration directly, not reusable references.

Option B: Correct - site variables enable you to reference the same VLAN or value in multiple configurations (switches, WLANs, etc.).

Option C: Incorrect - WLAN templates are for wireless SSID configuration.

Option D: Incorrect - switch templates define static configuration but don't store shared variables.
