Scrum Professional Scrum Product Owner II Sample Questions (Q20-Q25):

NEW QUESTION # 20
Managing a Product Backlog involves which of the following activities?
(choose all that apply)

- A. Reducing or eliminating dependencies between Product Backlog items.
- B. Ordering the Product Backlog.
- C. Breaking large Product Backlog items into multiple smaller Product Backlog items.
- D. Reviewing the Product Backlog with stakeholders.
- E. Forecasting the effort of Product Backlog items.

Answer: A,B,C,D

Explanation:
Product Backlog involves the following activities12:
Reducing or eliminating dependencies between Product Backlog items. This helps to increase the flexibility and adaptability of the Product Backlog, and enables the Developers to select the most valuable and feasible items to work on in each Sprint3.
Reviewing the Product Backlog with stakeholders. This helps to ensure that the Product Backlog reflects the needs and expectations of the customers and users, and that the Product Owner receives feedback and input from various perspectives4.
Breaking large Product Backlog items into multiple smaller Product Backlog items. This helps to create a more granular and transparent Product Backlog, and allows the Product Owner to prioritize and refine the items more effectively5.
Ordering the Product Backlog. This helps to communicate the relative importance and urgency of the Product Backlog items, and guides the Developers to select the most valuable items for the next Sprint.
Forecasting the effort of Product Backlog items is not an activity that is explicitly required for managing a Product Backlog. The Product Owner is mainly responsible for maximizing the value of the product, not the effort or cost of development. The effort of Product Backlog items may be estimated by the Developers, but this is not a mandatory practice and it does not affect the ordering of the Product Backlog. References: 1:

NEW QUESTION # 21
What best illustrates a GO product roadmap? (choose the best two answers)

- A. It supports value steering
- B. It focuses on what is being done now, what will be done next and what will be done later.
- C. It focuses on the goals rather than the features
- D. It provides an overview of all user stories ordered by a sequence of releases.

Answer: A,C

NEW QUESTION # 22

Team A is an excellent Scrum Team with a high velocity. At the 4th Sprint, the Scrum Team decided to lower the frequency of the Daily Scrum. They suggest conducting the Daily Scrum twice a week.
What are the three keys concerns if there are only two Daily Scrum meetings per Sprint? (choose ALL that apply).

- A. The Product Owner cannot make accurate report progress to the stakeholders.
- B. The Developers lose the opportunities to update the Gantt chart properly.
- C. Impediments are raised and accumulated, and it requires a great effort to resolve.
- D. The Sprint Planning might become inaccurate
- E. Lack of opportunities to inspect and adapt the Sprint Backlog

Answer: C,D,E

NEW QUESTION # 23
True or False: Max, a new Product Owner, is unsure about the types of requirements acceptable on a Product Backlog. He supposed that the Product Backlog should contain only a list of necessary features for a Product. The Developers should manage other types of requirements as Performing Requirement and Fixes. They are not the Product Owner's concern.

- A. The Product Backlog should be the single source of truth for all the work
- B. Yes, Max's idea is correct.
- C. False, the Product Backlog also contains the following types: - Stability requirements, - Performance requirements, - Documentation, - Fixes - Product Functionality

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 24
Which of the following are advantages of a Product Goal that is well-understood by the Scrum Team?
(choose the best three answers)

- A. It helps the Scrum Team to forecast when the entire Product Backlog will be delivered.
- B. A Product Goal is not mandatory in Scrum.
- C. It makes it easier to inspect incremental progress at the Sprint Review.
- D. It provides overall direction so Sprints will feel less like isolated pieces of work.
- E. It helps the Scrum Team keep focus and they can check any decision against it.

Answer: C,D,E

Explanation:
B: It helps the Scrum Team keep focus and they can check any decision against it: A well-understood Product Goal acts as a powerful magnet that propels Scrum teams towards value delivery34. It guides efforts, prioritizes activities, fosters collaboration, and ensures focus on delivering value to customers34.
C; It provides overall direction so Sprints will feel less like isolated pieces of work: The Product Goal provides context to the Product Backlog2. It can be thought of as the 'why' we are doing all of this work2. It can be used as the elevator pitch to 'what is the Scrum Team working on?'2.
D: It makes it easier to inspect incremental progress at the Sprint Review: As each Increment is produced, the Product incrementally moves toward the Product Goal2. How that value is incrementally determined is very context-specific2.
