NEW QUESTION # 24

Which Process Performance Indicator categories are most relevant when striving to identify automation potential? Note: There are 2 correct answers to this question.

- A. Automation rate
- B. Master data
- C. Exceptions
- D. Backlog

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

Identifying automation potential in SAP Signavio Process Intelligence involves analyzing Process Performance Indicators (PPIs) that highlight repetitive or error-prone tasks suitable for automation. The SAP Signavio Process Intelligence User Guide specifies:

* Exact Extract: "When assessing automation potential, key Process Performance Indicator categories include:

* Exceptions: Metrics related to errors, deviations, or manual interventions, which indicate tasks that could be automated to reduce human error.

* Automation Rate: Measures the proportion of tasks or cases that are already automated, helping identify opportunities to increase automation in low-automation areas." (SAP Signavio Process Intelligence User Guide, section on "Process Performance Indicators for Automation").

* Explanation:

* Option A (Exceptions): Exceptions, such as error rates or manual corrections, signal tasks that are prone to human error or inefficiency, making them prime candidates for automation to improve reliability and speed. For example, frequent manual overrides in an order processing step could be automated.

* Option D (Automation rate): The automation rate PPI shows the current level of automation in a process, allowing analysts to identify steps or processes with low automation rates that could benefit from robotic process automation (RPA) or workflow automation.

* Option B (Master data) is incorrect because master data issues (e.g., inconsistent customer records) are related to data quality, not directly to automation potential, though they may indirectly affect automation outcomes.

* Option C (Backlog) is incorrect as backlog metrics (e.g., pending cases) indicate workload issues but are less directly tied to identifying automation opportunities compared to exceptions or automation rate.
