The graphic provides an overview of the CFPS course. It features several logos at the top: CPD Official UK, Best Business Award - Australia, and ENGBO UAE. Below these are two seals: 'Top Global Credential in Fire Protection from NFPA' and 'NATIONAL FIRE PROTECTION ASSOCIATION'. The main title 'CFPS_ Certified Fire Protection Specialist' is centered. Below the title, a blue box contains '5 Lectures' and '15 Hours'. To the right of these, a box contains the 'Certified Fire Protection Specialist [CFPS®] Exam Blueprint'. Below the '15 Hours' box is 'References' with an arrow pointing to three study materials: 'NFPA 101®: Life Safety Code®', 'NFPA 13®: Standard for the Installation of Sprinkler Systems', and 'NFPA 130®: Standard for the Installation of Fire Protection Systems for Petroleum and Bulk Liquid Terminals'. At the bottom left, it says 'Dr. Kareem Amer P.E, CEng, CFPS, CFPE, CFI-I'.

NEW QUESTION # 27

Zebra mussel pipe obstructions are largely concentrated around the Great Lakes and

- A. Mississippi River areas.
- B. Colorado River areas.
- C. Lake Mead areas.
- D. Salt Lake areas.

Answer: A

Explanation:

The correct answer is B. Zebra mussel pipe obstructions are largely concentrated around the Great Lakes and Mississippi River areas. Zebra mussels are an invasive species that originated from Eurasia and were introduced to North America in the late 1980s through the ballast water of ships. They have since spread to many freshwater lakes and rivers, especially in the Midwest and Northeast regions of the United States and Canada. Zebra mussels can attach themselves to hard surfaces, such as pipes, pumps, valves, and filters, and form dense colonies that reduce or block the water flow. This can cause serious problems for industries, utilities, and municipalities that rely on water intake or delivery systems. Zebra mussels can also damage aquatic ecosystems, infrastructure, and recreation by competing with native species, altering water quality, and fouling boats and equipment12345

Probabilistic fire models are categorized into all of the following EXCEPT

- A. statistical.
- B. network.
- C. simulation.
- D. behavioral.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Probabilistic fire models are categorized into network, statistical, simulation, and behavioral models. Network models use graph theory to represent the fire spread and the fire protection system in a building. Statistical models use historical data and probability distributions to estimate the likelihood and consequences of fire scenarios. Simulation models use mathematical equations and numerical methods to describe the physical and chemical processes of fire and its effects on the environment and the occupants. Behavioral models use psychological and sociological theories to predict the human response and evacuation behavior in case of fire. Network models are not a common category of probabilistic fire models, and they are not mentioned in the sources provided by the user. Therefore, network models are the correct answer.

NEW QUESTION # 29

Cast iron, cement-lined underground piping is estimated to have a Hazen-Williams C value of

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: D

Explanation:

DIPRA and its predecessor, CIPRA, have long advocated a Hazen-Williams value of 140 for use with cement-lined Cast and Ductile Iron Pipe. This recommendation of a value for design purposes is sound. Over the years, DIPRA has conducted flow tests on cement-lined Cast and Ductile Iron Pipes in operational pipelines X new pipelines as well as those that have been in service for extended periods of time. These field tests have shown a C value of 140 to be realistic, and one that is maintained over time X even when transporting aggressive water. For additional information on this and related topics, request the following DIPRA brochures: Cement-Mortar Linings for Ductile Iron Pipe and §Hydraulic Analysis of Ductile Iron Pipe.

NEW QUESTION # 30

The incident command system (ICS) under the National Incident Management System (NIMS) has how many major functional areas?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: C

Explanation:

The ICS under the NIMS has five major functional areas: command, operations, planning, logistics, and finance/administration12. These functional areas are also known as sections and are headed by section chiefs. The command section is responsible for the overall management and direction of the incident. The operations section is responsible for the tactical actions to achieve the incident objectives. The planning section is responsible for the collection, evaluation, and dissemination of information and the development of the incident action plan. The logistics section is responsible for providing the resources and services needed to support the incident.

The finance/administration section is responsible for the financial, administrative, and legal aspects of the incident<sup>12</sup>. Reference: Fire Protection Handbook, NFPA 2008, Chapter 6.3.1, "Incident Command System". NIMS Components - Guidance and Tools, FEMA, "Incident Command System".

NEW QUESTION # 31

What type of standpipe system has piping that is normally filled with air but does NOT have a preconnected water supply?

- A. Manual-dry system
- B. Semiautomatic-dry system
- C. Automatic-dry system
- D. Manual-wet system

Answer: D

Explanation:

Dry Pipe Sprinkler System

- * A dry pipe sprinkler system is one in which pipes are filled with pressurized air, rather than water
- * This air holds a remote valve, known as a dry pipe valve, in a closed position
- * The dry-pipe valve prevents water from entering the pipe until a fire causes one or more sprinkler to operate. Once this happens, the air escapes and the dry pipe valve releases.
- * Water then enters the pipe, flowing through open sprinklers onto the fire.
- * Used where there is a risk of frost damage
- * WARNING: Frequent operation of compressor means trouble! Get help immediately
