NEW QUESTION # 439

An external NMC server that already has a trust established with one NetWorker server, needs to manage other NetWorker servers.

Where does an implementation engineer use the nsrauthtrust command for the NMC to manage the other servers?

- A. On all the NetWorker servers and the external NMC server.
- B. On the additional NetWorker servers to be managed.
- C. On the external NMC server.
- D. On the NetWorker server that is providing the authentication services to the external NMC server.

Answer: B

Explanation:

To enable an external NMC server to manage other NetWorker servers, the nsrauthtrust command must be executed on each additional NetWorker server that the NMC needs to manage. This establishes trust between the NetWorker server and the external NMC, allowing for secure communication and management capabilities.
