VMware NSX 4.x Advanced Design Sample Questions (Q142-Q147):

NEW QUESTION # 142

What is a primary goal of IT architecture?

- A. To manage social media presence
- B. To establish a technology framework and standards
- C. To define software development practices
- D. To outline the organizational structure

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 143

Multitier architectures in NSX provide control over stateful service location by:

- A. Centralizing all network services in a single tier
- B. Separating services that require statefulness from those that do not
- C. Limiting the bandwidth available to certain applications
- D. Requiring all traffic to pass through a physical router

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 144

A financial institution is looking to improve their existing virtual environment with a focus on increasing security to protect sensitive data. The firm has a single data center and is concerned about lateral movement of threats within the network. They are particularly interested in utilizing VMware NSX to implement segmentation and adopt a Zero Trust security model.

Which of the following would be part of the optimal recommended design, utilizing a firewall?

- A. Implement NSX with a Distributed Firewall with the use of VLAN-backed virtual standard switch for network segmentation.
- B. Implement NSX with a Distributed Firewall with each application deployed on its own Overlay Network.
- C. Implement NSX with Gateway Firewall with each application deployed on its own Overlay Network.
- D. Implement NSX with Gateway Firewall with the use of VLAN-backed virtual standard switch for network segmentation.

Answer: B

Explanation:

- * NSX Distributed Firewall for Zero Trust Security (Correct Answer - B):
  - * NSX Distributed Firewall (DFW) provides micro-segmentation at the vNIC level to enforce Zero Trust policies.
  - * Each application runs on its own NSX Overlay Network, preventing lateral movement of threats.
  - * Application-specific segmentation ensures granular control and compliance with regulatory standards (PCI-DSS, GDPR).
  - * Incorrect Options:
  - * (A - Gateway Firewall on Overlay Networks):
  - * The Gateway Firewall controls North-South traffic, but DFW is required for East-West security.
  - * (C & D - VLAN-Backed Networks Instead of Overlays):
  - * VLANs are limited in scalability compared to overlay networks, reducing segmentation flexibility.

NEW QUESTION # 145

Which two are part of the process for registering a Local Manager (LM) to a Global Manager (GM) in NSX for centralized management of network and security services across different locations? (Choose two.)

- A. The external load balancer VIP is used for NSX Managers without requiring node API certificate updates.
- B. The LM will validate the GM license to perform the GM registration.
- C. The GM-Active requests the LM IP (or FQDN) and admin credentials for registration.
- D. The IP or FQDN of any of the three LM nodes must be used for registration.
- E. The LM Cluster VIP (or FQDN LM Cluster VIP) is provided for GM-LM communication.

Answer: C,E

Explanation:

- * NSX Federation Registration Process (Correct Answers - A, E):
  - * (A - LM Cluster VIP is used for GM-LM communication)
  - * Ensures that the Global Manager (GM) can communicate with Local Managers (LMs) via a stable endpoint.
  - * (E - GM-Active requests LM IP/FQDN and admin credentials for registration)
  - * The Global Manager initiates the registration process by requesting LM connection details and authentication credentials.
  - * Incorrect Options:
  - * (B - LM Validates GM License):
  - * The GM handles licensing validation, not the Local Manager.
  - * (C - IP/FQDN of Any LM Node for Registration):
  - * NSX requires the LM Cluster VIP, not an individual node's IP, to ensure HA and failover support.
  - * (D - External Load Balancer VIP):
  - * NSX does not require an external load balancer for GM-LM communication.

  - * NSX Federation Centralized Security and Networking Management Guide

NEW QUESTION # 146

A Solutions Architect has been tasked with designing a comprehensive security policy methodology for a large financial institution. The institution has multiple departments and requires strict segregation of network traffic to ensure data confidentiality and regulatory compliance. The security policy should provide granular control over network traffic and enforce consistent security measures across the entire infrastructure.

Which feature of the NSX security policy should the architect recommend to achieve regulatory compliance for the financial institution?

- A. Network Introspection
- B. Identity-Based Firewalling
- C. Intrusion Detection and Prevention
- D. Micro-Segmentation

Answer: D

Explanation:

- * Micro-Segmentation for Granular Security (Correct Answer - C):
  - * Micro-segmentation in NSX-T enables granular firewall policies at the workload level, ensuring strict segregation of traffic across different departments.
  - * It allows zero trust security, ensuring only authorized communications occur between workloads, reducing attack surfaces.
  - * This is particularly critical for financial institutions that need regulatory compliance (e.g., PCI-DSS, GDPR, ISO 27001).
  - * Incorrect Options:
  - * (A - Intrusion Detection & Prevention - IDS/IPS):
  - * IDS/IPS provides threat detection, but it does not segment workloads or enforce access control.
  - * (B - Identity-Based Firewalling):
  - * NSX Identity Firewall (IDFW) can be useful for user-based policies but is not a replacement for network segmentation.
  - * (D - Network Introspection):
  - * NSX Network Introspection is used for third-party security integrations, not as a primary segmentation strategy.

- * VMware NSX-T Security Reference Guide
  - * Micro-Segmentation Best Practices in NSX-T
