CIPS Managing Teams and Individuals Sample Questions (Q20-Q25):

NEW QUESTION # 20

What is needed for a group to be effective? (15 points). Is it important that each person plays a different role within the group? (10 points).

Answer:

Explanation:

See the Explanation for Detailed Answer

Explanation:

Part A - What is needed for a group to be effective (15 points):

For a group to be effective, several conditions must be in place.

Firstly, the group must have clear objectives and purpose. Without shared goals, members may pull in different directions, leading to inefficiency.

Secondly, strong leadership is needed to guide the group, set direction, and balance concern for people with concern for tasks.

Leadership provides motivation and resolves conflicts.

Thirdly, good communication ensures information is shared openly, problems are raised quickly, and collaboration is smooth. In procurement, this means buyers, finance, and operations align on sourcing decisions.

Fourthly, groups need defined roles and responsibilities. Clarity prevents duplication of work and ensures accountability. For example, one person may manage supplier contracts while another handles negotiations.

Finally, trust and cooperation are essential. When group members respect and support each other, they are more willing to share knowledge, take risks, and commit to decisions. Psychological safety is key to team performance.

Part B - Importance of different roles in a group (10 points):

It is important that each person plays a different role within the group. According to Belbin's Team Roles theory, groups are more effective when individuals contribute complementary strengths. Roles may include "Shapers" who drive action, "Plants" who bring creativity, "Implementers" who turn plans into reality, and "Monitor Evaluators" who provide critical analysis.

If everyone in the group plays the same role, important skills may be missing. For example, a procurement team made up entirely of "Shapers" may generate energy but lack careful analysis, leading to poor supplier selection. Conversely, a balanced team ensures creativity, organisation, and delivery are all present.

Conclusion:

For a group to be effective, it needs clear goals, leadership, communication, defined roles, and trust. It is also important that members bring different strengths and roles, as this diversity improves problem-solving and ensures the group performs to its full potential.

NEW QUESTION # 21

Kevin is the Head of Procurement at a manufacturing company and oversees the work of a team of 32 procurement professionals. The different people within his team have a varying level of knowledge and skills and they all work on different projects, some of which are more important than others. Based on Kevin's concern for the team member's performance and his concern for the task they are completing, describe FIVE leadership styles Kevin could employ. Your answer may make reference to Blake and Mouton's Leadership Grid (25 points).

Answer:

Explanation:

See the Explanation for Detailed Answer

Explanation:

Blake and Mouton's Leadership Grid highlights five leadership styles based on two dimensions: concern for people and concern for task. Kevin can use different styles depending on the skills of his team and the importance of each project.

Impoverished Management (Low task/Low people)

This style shows little concern for people or performance. Kevin would provide minimal guidance or support, essentially leaving the team to their own devices. While not usually effective, it may be applied temporarily where staff are highly capable and self-motivated, or in less critical projects where close oversight is not needed.

Country Club Management (High people/Low task)

Here, Kevin shows strong concern for people but little focus on results. He prioritises team harmony, morale, and relationships. This could be used with a new or inexperienced team to build confidence and trust, but it risks low performance if project deadlines or targets are missed.

Task Management (High task/Low people)

This style focuses heavily on performance, structure, and efficiency, with little attention to employee needs. Kevin might use this in high-pressure procurement projects, such as negotiating urgent supply contracts, where results are critical. However, overuse can demotivate staff and create high turnover.

Middle-of-the-Road Management (Medium task/Medium people)

This is a balanced approach where Kevin gives some attention to both people and results but does not excel in either. It produces average performance and morale. Kevin might use this style for steady projects with moderate importance, though it risks mediocrity if not adapted when situations demand more.

Team Management (High task/High people)

This is considered the most effective style, where Kevin drives high performance while also motivating and supporting his team. He involves employees in decision-making, sets challenging goals, and encourages collaboration. For example, in strategic procurement projects, Kevin could adopt this style to achieve strong results while also developing his team's skills.

By switching between these styles, Kevin can match leadership behaviours to the skills of his team and the importance of the task.

For example, urgent, high-value contracts may need task management, while long-term development projects may benefit from team management.

Conclusion:

Blake and Mouton's grid provides five leadership styles - impoverished, country club, task-focused, middle-of-the-road, and team management. Each has strengths and weaknesses, and Kevin's role as Head of Procurement is to adapt his approach depending on the project demands and the skills of his team members. By applying situational leadership, he can ensure both high performance and team engagement.

NEW QUESTION # 22

Describe four types of culture that can exist within an organisation (20 points)

Answer:

Explanation:

See the Explanation for Detailed Answer

Explanation:

Organisational culture refers to the shared values, beliefs, norms and behaviours that shape "the way things are done" in a workplace. One of the most widely used models is Charles Handy's four types of organisational culture, which describe different ways in which organisations can operate.

The first is the Power Culture. In this type, authority is concentrated at the centre, usually with a strong leader or small group of individuals. Decisions are made quickly, and personal influence is key. This culture can be dynamic and decisive but may create dependency on the leader and limit employee autonomy. In procurement, a power culture might mean senior management unilaterally deciding supplier strategies without consulting the wider team.

The second is the Role Culture. Here, the organisation is highly structured with clear roles, rules, and procedures. Power comes from position rather than personality. Stability and order are prioritised, making it efficient in predictable environments. However, it can be rigid and resistant to change. In procurement, this culture might be seen in public sector bodies where strict compliance, policies, and audit controls dominate purchasing activities.

The third is the Task Culture. This type is project-oriented, with teams formed to solve problems or deliver objectives. Power is based on expertise, and collaboration is valued. It is flexible, innovative, and well-suited to dynamic environments, but can cause conflict if resources are limited. In procurement, task culture is often evident in cross-functional category teams formed to deliver strategic sourcing projects.

The fourth is the Person Culture. Here, the focus is on individuals rather than the organisation. Employees see themselves as more important than the structure, and autonomy is prioritised. This is rare in large organisations but can be found in professional partnerships such as law or consultancy firms. In procurement, a person culture may appear where highly specialised experts operate independently, sometimes resisting organisational control.

In conclusion, Handy's four types of culture - power, role, task, and person - each offer strengths and weaknesses. Effective managers must understand the prevailing culture in their organisation and adapt their leadership approach. In procurement and supply, recognising cultural influences is vital to building cohesive teams, aligning strategies, and driving ethical and sustainable practices.

NEW QUESTION # 23

Describe what is meant by a group 'norm', giving examples. (10 points). In what way can group norms affect performance? (15 points).

Answer:

Explanation:

See the Explanation for Detailed Answer

Explanation:

Definition of Group Norms (10 marks):

A group 'norm' refers to the shared standards of behaviour, values, and expectations that develop within a group. Norms guide how members act and interact, creating predictability and cohesion. They can be formal (set by rules and policies) or informal (emerging naturally over time).

Examples include:

A procurement team having a norm of punctuality for meetings.

A social norm where colleagues share supplier insights openly.

A negative norm, such as tolerating late submission of purchase orders, which may undermine performance.

Norms act as unwritten rules that shape group behaviour and influence the culture of the organisation.

Impact of Group Norms on Performance (15 marks):

Positive norms can enhance performance. For example, a norm of collaboration and knowledge sharing improves innovation and decision-making in procurement projects.

Negative norms can reduce performance. If the team develops a culture of cutting corners in supplier evaluation, this may damage compliance and reputation.

Norms create consistency and cohesion. Members know what is expected of them, reducing conflict and ensuring smoother teamwork.

Peer pressure reinforces norms. High-performing norms, such as meeting deadlines, encourage all members to contribute fully, while low-performing norms, like tolerating absenteeism, can lower standards across the team.

Norms influence motivation and morale. Supportive norms (e.g., recognising achievements) motivate employees, whereas destructive norms (e.g., ignoring contributions) lead to alienation and disengagement.

In procurement specifically, if the norm is strong ethical conduct, the team will collectively avoid corruption risks. If the norm is to focus only on cost savings, the team may neglect sustainability or supplier relationships.

Conclusion:

Group norms are the unwritten rules that shape behaviour within teams. They can have a powerful effect on performance, either enhancing collaboration and accountability or reducing standards and morale. Managers must actively shape positive norms through leadership, communication, and role-modelling to ensure that group behaviour supports organisational goals.

NEW QUESTION # 24

Contrast different ways in which an individual can learn new skills/knowledge (15 points). Describe a factor which may influence how individuals learn a new skill/knowledge (10 points).

Answer:

Explanation:

See the Explanation for Detailed Answer

Explanation:

Individuals learn in different ways, and managers must understand these methods to develop their teams effectively.

One method is formal learning, such as classroom courses, e-learning, or qualifications like CIPS. This gives structured knowledge and ensures consistency, but it may lack immediate workplace application.

A second method is on-the-job learning, where skills are developed through daily tasks, job rotation or shadowing. This is practical and tailored to the workplace but may be inconsistent without good supervision.

A third approach is experiential learning, based on Kolb's cycle of experience, reflection, conceptualisation and testing. For example, a buyer may learn negotiation skills by practising in a live supplier meeting, reflecting on performance, and then improving.

Another method is social learning, as described by Bandura

a. Individuals learn by observing and modelling others' behaviour. In procurement, junior staff may observe how senior colleagues manage supplier relationships and copy effective practices.

Finally, there is self-directed learning, where individuals take initiative through reading, research or online courses. This builds independence but requires strong personal motivation.

In contrast, formal learning is structured and standardised, while experiential and social learning are more practical and situational.

On-the-job learning blends practice with support, whereas self-directed learning provides autonomy but less guidance. Most organisations use a mix of these methods to ensure balanced development.

One important factor that influences learning is an individual's learning style. According to Honey and Mumford, some people are activists (learn best by doing), others are reflectors (learn by observing and thinking), theorists (prefer analysing concepts), or pragmatists (want to apply ideas in practice). For example, in procurement training, an activist may benefit from a role-play negotiation, while a theorist may prefer studying sourcing models before application. Managers who recognise learning styles can tailor development activities to individual preferences, making learning more effective.

In conclusion, individuals can learn through formal, on-the-job, experiential, social, or self-directed approaches, each with strengths and weaknesses. Learning effectiveness depends on personal factors such as style, and managers who understand these differences can create development opportunities that are both motivating and productive.
