NEW QUESTION # 39

A developer is designing a new application on the Salesforce platform and wants to ensure it can support multiple tenants effectively. Which design framework should the developer consider to ensure scalability and maintainability?

- A. Agile Development
- B. Flux (view, action, dispatcher, and store)
- C. Model-View-Controller (MVC)
- D. Waterfall Model

Answer: C

Explanation:

* MVC: The Model-View-Controller design pattern is ideal for Salesforce development as it separates the business logic (model), user interface (view), and controller logic, ensuring scalability and maintainability.

* Salesforce's architecture inherently supports MVC, with sObjects as the model, Visualforce or Lightning components as the view, and Apex controllers as the controller.

Why not other options?

* A: The Waterfall model is a development methodology, not a design framework.

* B: Flux is a front-end application architecture and not relevant to Salesforce.

* D: Agile is a development methodology, not a design framework.

NEW QUESTION # 40

A developer creates a Lightning web component that imports a method within an Apex class. When a Validate button is pressed, the method runs to execute complex validations.

In this implementation scenario, which two options are part of the Controller according to the MVC architecture?

Choose 2 answers

- A. HTML file
- B. Apex class
- C. XML file
- D. JavaScript file

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

In the Model-View-Controller (MVC) architecture applied to a Lightning Web Component (LWC) that imports an Apex method: Controller refers to the logic that handles input and interactions.

In this scenario, when a button is pressed, the method runs to execute complex validations.

Option C: Apex class

Part of Controller.

The Apex class contains the method that performs the complex validations.

It acts as the server-side controller logic.

The JavaScript file of the LWC handles the client-side logic.

It invokes the Apex method when the button is pressed.

The HTML file defines the component's template (View), not the Controller.

Option B: XML file

Configuration File.

The XML file (configuration file) defines metadata about the component, such as where it's available, but it's not part of the Controller.

Conclusion:

The Controller parts in this scenario are the Apex class and the JavaScript file, which are Options C and D.

Choose 3 answers

- A. Relationships
- B. Roll-up summaries
- C. Custom objects and fields
- D. Flows
- E. Triggers

Answer: A,B,C

Explanation:

* A: Custom objects and fields are the fundamental building blocks of the database layer in Salesforce for creating and storing custom data.

* C: Roll-up summary fields are a declarative feature used to perform calculations (e.g., sum, count) on child records and display the results on the parent record.

* D: Relationships (e.g., master-detail, lookup) are essential for defining how data objects are related to each other.

Why not other options?

* B: Triggers are a programmatic solution, which goes against the declarative-only requirement.

* E: Flows are used for automation and logic, not for building the database layer.
