NEW QUESTION # 171

Using wireless connect-list it's possible to prioritize connection to one Access Point over another Access Point by changing the order of the entries.

- A. False
- B. True

Answer: B

Explanation:

The connect-list in RouterOS is used to define rules for wireless client behavior when connecting to available Access Points. You can define multiple entries in the connect-list, and RouterOS processes them in top-down order. This allows prioritization of APs based on criteria such as SSID, signal strength, and MAC address.

MTCNA Course Material - Wireless Client Settings:

"The connect-list determines the order in which the wireless client will try to associate with Access Points.

Entries are processed from top to bottom, allowing prioritized connection attempts." Rene Meneses MTCNA Study Guide - Wireless & Connect-List Section:

"By placing the most preferred AP at the top of the connect-list, you ensure it is attempted first. Reordering entries is used to manage roaming behavior and priority." MikroTik Wiki - Wireless Client & Connect List:

"The client will attempt to connect to the first matching entry in the connect list. This means the connect list can be used to define AP priorities." Therefore, the statement is true.

NEW QUESTION # 172

Winbox is a small, native Windows utility provided by MikroTik for graphical administration of RouterOS devices. It is typically downloaded from MikroTik's official website.

* A. Router's webpage # Incorrect. While the router's WebFig interface may allow configuration, it does not offer a Winbox download.

* B. Files menu # Incorrect. The Files menu is for storing backups or firmware packages, not distributing Winbox.

- * C. Console cable # Incorrect. Console access is CLI only; no GUI utilities can be transferred through it.
- * D. mikrotik.com # Correct. The only official and secure location to download Winbox is the MikroTik website.

Extract from Official MTCNA Course Material - RouterOS Introduction:

"Winbox can be downloaded from the official MikroTik website. It provides a GUI frontend for managing RouterOS." Extract from Rene Meneses MTCNA Study Guide - RouterOS Access Methods:

"You can download Winbox from mikrotik.com under the Software Tools section." Extract from Terry Combs MTCNA Notes - Access Methods:
