Troubleshooting protection policies and recovery plans requires identifying network mapping failures, vNIC issues, script execution problems, and connectivity failures. Metro replication troubleshooting involves addressing naming conventions, network limitations, and replication states. Security issues in AOS and Prism Central must be resolved by managing CVM communications, security warnings, and log analysis. LCM operations require diagnosing failures in inventory updates and version upgrades. Performance troubleshooting involves analyzing logs, reading performance charts, and adjusting VM configurations to meet performance needs.
Topic 3	 Manage Clusters within a Nutanix Multicloud Environment: This section of the exam measures the skills of Infrastructure Engineers and Systems Administrators and covers the administration of Nutanix clusters. Storage management includes creating, reading, updating, and deleting storage containers and volume groups. Configuring AOS and Prism Central settings involves authentication, SSL certificate management, IAM role-based access control, and configuring network segmentation. Network administration procedures focus on creating VLAN-backed subnets, virtual switches, and load-balancing policies while monitoring NIC usage. Lifecycle management includes performing hardware and software updates and maintaining firmware. Hardware maintenance involves adding or removing nodes and physical disks while ensuring proper upgrades and replacements. Intelligent operations require configuring capacity policies, discovering application relationships, and simulating scenarios to optimize performance.
Торіс 4	 Conduct Custom Monitoring within a Nutanix Multicloud Environment: This section of the exam measures the skills of Cloud Analysts and Systems Engineers and covers custom monitoring for optimized performance management. Candidates must analyze performance charts, set retention policies, create custom service level agreements (SLAs), and manage storage based on policies. Creating reports involves identifying the required type, selecting generation frequency, determining retention properties, and customizing report formats for different monitoring needs. Effective monitoring ensures better resource utilization, system efficiency, and proactive issue resolution within the multi-cloud environment.
Topic 5	 Configure Disaster Recovery and Data Protection within a Nutanix Multicloud Environment: This section of the exam measures the skills of Disaster Recovery Specialists and Cloud Engineers and covers configuring protection policies and domains for data security and recovery. Candidates need to identify the right entities for protection, schedule backups, define retention policies, and set up replication to remote sites. Recovery plans must be configured and executed with proper scripting, network mapping, and failover strategies. Metro replication requires understanding failover methodologies, comparing solutions on different hypervisors, and preventing split-brain scenarios. Effective disaster recovery planning ensures minimal downtime and data integrity across environments.

Nutanix Certified Professional - Multicloud Infrastructure (NCP-MCI v6.10) Sample Questions (Q86-Q91):

NEW QUESTION #86

Upon reaching the maximum instances of retained reports, what occurs?

- A. Reporting failure is reported.
- B. New reporting is delayed.
- C. Oldest report is deleted
- D. Manual deletion is required.

Answer: C

Explanation:

When the maximum instance count of retained reports is reached, Nutanix automatically deletes the oldest report to accommodate the new one.

From the Nutanix Enterprise Cloud Administration (ECA) course materials:

"To ensure storage and performance efficiency, Nutanix reporting limits the number of stored reports. If this maximum is reached, the oldest report instance is automatically deleted to make space for new reports."

NEW QUESTION #87

How can a VM or Volume Group (VG) be associated with a Storage Policy?

- A. Assign the VM or VG directly to the Storage Policy.
- B. Assign the Storage Policy directly on the VM or VG.
- C. Assign the VM or VG to the same Category as the Storage Policy.
- D. Migrate the VM or VG to the Storage Container assigned to the Storage Policy.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Storage Policies in Nutanix are applied through Categories, allowing policy-based automation and enforcement.

- * Option D (Assign the VM or VG to the same Category as the Storage Policy) is correct:
- * Nutanixapplies Storage Policies based on VM Categories, enablingflexibility in policy enforcement.
- * Option A is incorrect:
- * Storage Policies are not directly assigned at the VM or VG level-they apply through Categories.
- * Option B is incorrect:
- * Policies must be assigned to Categories, not directly to individual VMs/VGs.
- * Option C is incorrect:
- * Migrating to a storage container does not automatically apply a Storage Policy.

NEW QUESTION #88

An administrator isprotecting an application and its datastored on Volume Groupsusing Protection Domains. During failover tests, all application VMs restore successfully, but the application data is completely missing. How can the Protection Domain configuration be adjusted to avoid this issue in the future? (Choose two.)

- A. Select the "Auto protect related entities" checkbox.
- B. Place Volume Groups in a separate Protection Domain.
- C. Use application-consistent snapshots.
- D. Manually add Volume Groups to Protected Entities.

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Protection Domains (PDs) in Nutanix ensure that entire applications and their associated data are protected during failover. However, Volume Groups (VGs) are not automatically included unless explicitly configured.

- * Option A (Select "Auto protect related entities") is correct:
- * This setting ensures that associated Volume Groups, networks, and other dependencies are included in the Protection Domain automatically.
- * Without enabling this, only the VM itself would be protected, leading tomissing application data upon failover.
- * Option B (Manually add Volume Groups to Protected Entities) is correct:
- * If"Auto protect related entities" is not enabled, the administrator mustmanually add Volume Groups to the Protection Domain.
- * This ensures that bothVMs and their attached Volume Groupsare replicated and recovered together.
- * Option C (Place Volume Groups in a separate Protection Domain) is incorrect:
- * Separating Volume Groups into a different PDdoes not guarantee they failover together with VMs.
- * It is best practice tokeep related VMs and Volume Groups in the same PD.
- * Option D (Use application-consistent snapshots) is incorrect:
- * Whileapplication-consistent snapshots improve data integrity, theydo not fix missing Volume Groups in failover scenarios.

- B. Create arole mapping for each team lead and assign appropriately.
- C. Create a Project for each team lead and assign access.
- D. CreateSecurity Policiesto isolate users.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Themost efficient wayto allow team leads to manage aspecific set of VMsis bycreating a Project (Option C)in Prism Central and assigning the team leads to that Project.

- * Nutanix Projects allow administrators to control VM accessbased on groups and permissions, ensuring that users only manage VMs assigned to their project.
- * Option A (Role Mapping)applies more broadly to roles but does not restrict access to specific VM groups.
- * Option B (VPC Admin)is related to network segmentation, not VM access control.
- * Option D (Security Policies) are used for network and firewall rules, not VM access control.
