NEW QUESTION # 22

Why would you build a custom app?

- A. To create a custom integration for a 3rd party system
- B. To replace ServiceNow base tables
- C. To fulfill a specific use case on internal processes.
- D. To avoid using a code repository like GitHub or GitLab

Answer: C

Explanation:

A possible reason to build a custom app is to fulfill a specific use case on internal processes. For example, you may want to digitize a manual process that is not covered by an existing ServiceNow solution, such as managing inventory, tracking expenses, or scheduling events. Building a custom app on the Now Platform can help you automate workflows, improve data quality, and provide better user experiences. The other options are not valid reasons to build a custom app. To avoid using a code repository like GitHub or GitLab is not a reason to build a custom app, as you can still use source control integration with your custom app development. To create a custom integration for a 3rd party system is not a reason to build a custom app, as you can use integration tools such as IntegrationHub or REST APIs to connect with external systems without creating an app. To replace ServiceNow base tables is not a reason to build a custom app, as it is not recommended to modify or delete base tables that are essential for ServiceNow functionality. NEW QUESTION # 23

- B. A UI Policy's Actions execute before the UI Policy's Scripts
- C. The execution order for a UI Policy's Scripts and Actions is determined at runtime

Scripts are custom JavaScript code that can be used to perform more complex logic or validations. Actions are executed first, and then Scripts are executed if the UI Policy conditions are met. References: [ServiceNow Docs - UI policy actions], [ServiceNow Docs - UI policy scripts]

NEW QUESTION # 24

When creating new application files in a scoped application, cross scope access is turned on by default in which of the following?

- A. Workflow
- B. Table
- C. REST messages
- D. Script Include

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 25

For Application Access there is a configuration option called Allow access to this table via web services. Which one of the following statements is true when this option is selected?

- A. This option restricts access only to SOAP web services but does not apply to REST
- B. This option restricts the ability to delete records via web services but records can always be read
- C. The user performing the query via web services must have the correct permissions to access the table's records
- D. Even when not selected, users with the correct permissions can use web services to access the table's records

Answer: A

Explanation:

Application Access is a feature that allows you to control the access level of other application scopes to your application's data tables. By selecting the Allow access to this table via web services option, you can enable other application scopes to access your data tables using web services, such as SOAP or REST. However, the user performing the query via web services must have the correct permissions to access the table's records.

The user must have the appropriate roles and access controls to perform the operations on the table, such as create, read, write, or delete.

The other statements are not true when this option is selected. This option does not restrict the ability to delete records via web services, nor does it allow records to be always read. The access to the records depends on the user's permissions and the web service method. This option also does not restrict access only to SOAP web services, but applies to both SOAP and REST web services. Finally, this option is not the only way to enable web service access to the table's records. Even when this option is not selected, users with the correct permissions can use web services to access the table's records, as long as they specify the application scope in the web service request.
