NEW QUESTION # 41

A sales representative presents a solution and the customer is interested in moving forward. How can the sales rep gain the customer's commitment and close the deal?

- A. Develop a roadmap with complementary products.
- B. Negotiate to finalize the contract.
- C. Propose and schedule an additional demo.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Negotiating is the final stage of the sales process, where the sales rep and the customer agree on the terms and conditions of the deal. Negotiating helps to overcome any remaining objections, address any concerns, and close the deal with mutual satisfaction. NEW QUESTION # 42

When a sales representative faces an objection, what is an effective first step to overcome it?

- A. Acknowledge the objection and ask follow-up questions.
- B. Explain policies and procedures that solve the objection.
- C. Provide an additional demonstration based on the objection.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Acknowledging the objection and asking follow-up questions is an effective first step to overcome an objection from the customer. Acknowledging the objection helps to show empathy and respect for the customer's concerns, as well as to avoid confrontation or defensiveness. Asking follow-up questions helps to understand the root cause, scope, and impact of the objection, as well as to clarify any misunderstandings or misinformation. NEW QUESTION # 43

A sales representative delivers a proposal and checks in with the prospect on the perceived value and alignment. At which stage are they in the sales process?

- A. Confirm
- B. Collaborate
- C. Connect

Answer: A

Explanation:

The stage in the sales process where a sales representative delivers a proposal and checks in with the prospect on the perceived value and alignment is typically known as the "Confirm" stage. During this phase, the sales rep seeks to ensure that the proposal meets the prospect's needs and expectations, and that there is a mutual understanding of the value the solution offers. This step is crucial for moving towards closing the sale, as it involves resolving any outstanding questions or concerns and solidifying the prospect's commitment to proceeding. Salesforce outlines various stages in the sales process, and the confirmation stage is critical for validating that both parties are aligned before finalizing the deal.

NEW QUESTION # 44

A sales representative is looking for ways to engage with a prospect at a greenfield account on a digital platform. Which customer-centric approach should be used by the sales rep?

- A. Promote a prospect's content on social media.
- B. Upsell to a prospect at an existing account.
- C. Send an email with content links to a prospect.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Promoting a prospect's content on social media is a customer-centric approach that can be used by the sales rep to engage with a prospect at a greenfield account on a digital platform, because it shows that the sales rep is interested in the prospect's work and values their expertise. This can help to build rapport and trust with the prospect, and create an opportunity for further conversation and relationship building. Upselling to a prospect at an existing account or sending an email with content links to a prospect are not customer-centric approaches, because they are more focused on the sales rep's own goals and interests, rather than the prospect's.

Upselling to a prospect at an existing account is not relevant to a greenfield account, which is a new account with no prior relationship or history with the sales rep or the company. Sending an email with content links to a prospect may be seen as spammy or intrusive, and may not capture the prospect's attention or interest. Self-awareness, self-management, empathy, and skilled relationships are the four elements of emotional intelligence.
