NEW QUESTION # 47

How do event-driven architectures enable organizations respond quickly to changing market demands and maintain operational stability during unforeseen issues?

- A. They enable real-time processing of data, enabling organizations react swiftly to market shifts and maintain stability by decoupling components for flexible scaling and increased fault tolerance.
- B. They prioritize batch processing of data, that hinders rapid responses to market changes and increases system complexity.
- C. They rely on tightly coupled components, that limit scalability and make them vulnerable to cascading failures during unexpected disruption.
- D. They require extensive manual intervention for data processing, that slows reactions to market shifts and reduces operational efficiency.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Event-Driven Architectures (EDA) provide real-time responsiveness and resilience by:

Real-time data processing # Immediate reaction to business events (e.g., order creation, stock changes).

Decoupling of components # Producers and consumers are independent, allowing flexible scaling.

Fault tolerance # Failures in one component do not propagate due to event buffering and loose coupling.

Incorrect options:

A # Batch processing delays responsiveness.

C # EDA minimizes manual intervention.

D # Tight coupling is opposite to EDA principles.

NEW QUESTION # 48

You want to access individual entities of an HTTP call over XPath. What must you do if no namespace mapping exists?

- A. Convert the namespaces to XML
- B. Convert the namespaces to JSON.
- C. Remove the XML prolog.
- D. Remove the namespaces.

Answer: D

Explanation:

If no namespace mapping exists, you must remove the namespaces to access individual entities of an HTTP call over XPath.

Namespaces are prefixes that identify the source or context of an XML element or attribute. If the namespaces are not mapped to a URI, they can cause errors or conflicts when using XPath expressions. Therefore, you must remove the namespaces before applying XPath queries.

You are using a Data store Operation of the type Write. Which parameter must you select to avoid duplicate entries?

- A. Encrypted stored Message
- B. Retention Threshold for Alerting
- C. Include Message Headers

Other options:

Encrypted Stored Message # Secures data, not related to duplicates.
