NEW QUESTION # 409

An administrator is adding NAS-based storage to a server. Which of the following strategies will allow users to see BEST performance with this new NAS storage?

- A. Connect server to NAS storage using two redundant HBAs.
- B. Connect server to NAS storage using two redundant SCSI controllers.

- C. Connect server to NAS storage using two teamed 1 Gb NICs.
- D. Connect server to NAS storage using two redundant fabric switches.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 410

A server administrator is configuring a new server that will hold large amounts of information. The server will need to be accessed by multiple users at the same time. Which of the following server roles will the administrator MOST likely need to install?

- A. Database
- B. Application
- C. Print
- D. Messaging

Answer: A

Explanation:

Few people are expected to use the database at the same time and users don't need to customize the design of the database.

A database is a collection of structured data that can be stored, queried, manipulated, and analyzed using various methods and tools. A database server is a server that hosts one or more databases and provides access to them over a network. A database server can handle large amounts of information and support concurrent requests from multiple users or applications.

NEW QUESTION # 411

A systems administrator notices the fans are running at full speed in a newly upgraded server. Which of the following should be done to address this issue?

- A. Replace the PSU.
- B. Reattach the heat sink.
- C. Reseat the video card.
- D. Reseat the RAM.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive Detailed Explanation with all CompTIA Server+ SK0-005 Study Guide References: If the fans are running at full speed, it may indicate that the CPU or system temperature is too high. This is often caused by a poorly attached or improperly seated heat sink, which prevents efficient heat dissipation.

Reattaching the heat sink with proper thermal paste resolves the issue.

* A. Replace the PSU: Not relevant to temperature control.

* B. Reseat the video card: Would not affect fan speed unless a GPU temperature issue exists, which is not stated here.

* C. Reseat the RAM: Unrelated to fan operation.

NEW QUESTION # 412

A company needs a media server set up that provides the highest availability with a minimum requirement of at least 10TB. The company purchased five HDDs, each with a 4TB capacity. Which of the options would provide the highest fault tolerance and meet the requirements?

- A. RAID 5
- B. RAID 6
- C. RAID 10
- D. RAID 0

Answer: B

Explanation:

RAID 6 is a RAID level that uses disk striping with two parity blocks distributed across all member disks. It can tolerate the failure of up to two disks without losing any data. RAID 6 can provide a minimum of 10TB of usable storage space with five 4TB disks, as the formula for calculating the RAID 6 capacity is $(n-2) \times S_{min}$, where n is the number of disks and S_{min} is the smallest disk size. In this case, the RAID 6 capacity is $(5-2) \times 4TB = 12TB$.

NEW QUESTION # 413

The management team at a healthcare organization is concerned about being able to access the dairy vital records if there is an IT disaster that causes both servers and the network to be offline. Which of the following backup types can the organization use to mitigate this risk?

- A. Disk
- B. Print
- C. Cloud
- D. Tape

Answer: B

Explanation:

A print backup is a type of backup that can be used to mitigate the risk of being unable to access the daily vital records if there is an IT disaster that causes both servers and the network to be offline. A print backup is a backup that involves printing out the data on paper and storing it in a secure location. A print backup can provide offline access to the data without relying on any hardware or software components that may be affected by the disaster. However, a print backup has some drawbacks such as high cost, low efficiency, low security, and environmental impact. A tape backup is a type of backup that involves storing the data on magnetic tape cartridges that can be accessed using a tape drive or a tape library. A tape backup can provide offline access to the data with high capacity, low cost, and long durability, but it requires special equipment and software that may not be available during a disaster. A cloud backup is a type of backup that involves storing the data on remote servers or platforms that can be accessed over the internet using a web browser or an application. A cloud backup can provide online access to the data with high scalability, flexibility, and security, but it requires network connectivity and bandwidth that may not be available during a disaster. A disk backup is a type of backup that involves storing the data on hard disk drives or solid state drives that can be accessed using a computer or a device. A disk backup can provide online or offline access to the data with high performance, reliability, and portability, but it requires compatible hardware and software that may not be available during a disaster.
