NEW QUESTION # 188
How does TOR alter data content during transit?

- A. It encrypts content and destination information over multiple layers.
- B. It redirects destination traffic through multiple sources avoiding traceability.
- C. It traverses source traffic through multiple destinations before reaching the receiver
- D. It spoofs the destination and source information protecting both sides.

Answer: A

Explanation:
TOR is a network that enables anonymous communication over the internet by routing the traffic through a series of relays or nodes. TOR alters the data content during transit by encrypting it and the destination information over multiple layers, using a technique called onion routing. Each layer of encryption can only be decrypted by a specific relay in the network, which reveals the next destination. This way, no single relay knows the complete path or the content of the data, making it difficult to trace or monitor the communication. NEW QUESTION # 189
Refer to the exhibit.
What is the potential threat identified in this Stealthwatch dashboard?

- A. A policy violation is active for host 10.201.3.149.
- B. There are three active data exfiltration alerts.
- C. A host on the network is sending a DDoS attack to another inside host.
- D. A policy violation is active for host 10.10.101.24.

Answer: A

Explanation:
The Stealthwatch dashboard indicates that there is an active policy violation associated with host 10.201.3.149. Stealthwatch is a security analytics tool that uses network telemetry to detect and respond to threats. In this case, the dashboard has flagged a policy violation, which means that activity from this host has been detected that goes against the defined security policies, potentially indicating a security threat or unauthorized access.

What is occurring in this network?

- A. DNS cache poisoning
- B. MAC address table overflow
- C. MAC flooding attack

- D. ARP cache poisoning

Answer: C

Explanation:
The exhibit shows a network diagram with a switch, a router, and two hosts. The switch has a MAC address table that maps the MAC addresses of the connected devices to the corresponding ports. A MAC flooding attack is a type of attack that aims to overload the switch's MAC address table by sending a large number of frames with spoofed source MAC addresses. This causes the switch to enter a fail-open mode, where it broadcasts all incoming frames to all ports, effectively turning it into a hub. This allows the attacker to sniff the traffic between the hosts and the router, or launch other attacks such as ARP spoofing or man-in-the-middle
