Which of the following would the administrator recommend? (Choose the best answer)

- A. HST-2 Data Center using an Orchestrator to recover VMs across sites
- B. HST-2 Data Center using a programmed multi-party O/S solution
- C. HST-2 Data Center using a programmed multi-party O/S solution
- D. HST-2 Data Center using built-in disaster automation on O/S at secondary site recovery unit

Answer: C

Explanation: HST-2 architecture allows creating global routing constructs (Regions & Segments) and uses of the same across cases of federation in HST06.

VMware NSX 4.x Advanced Design Sample Questions (Q114-Q119):

NEW QUESTION # 114

The stretched networking capability in Federation allows for?

- A. Seamless mobility of applications across data centers
- B. Reduction in the need for global load balancing
- C. Extension of Layer 2 networks across sites without physical links
- D. Use of a single IP address for all site locations

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 115

A Network Solutions Architect is tasked with designing an optimized and high-performing NSX solution, keeping in mind the need for DPU-based acceleration. The architect needs to consider the use of Geneve Offload, Receive Side Scaling (RSS), Geneve Rx Filters, SSL Offload, and the effects of Multi- TEP, MTU size, and NIC speed on throughput. Furthermore, the architect also needs to consider the key performance factors for compute nodes and NSX Edge nodes.

The company CTO is worried about potential network bottlenecks as they continue to grow.

Which strategy should the architect recommend to address the CTO's concern?

- A. Decrease the MTU size and use a single TEP.
- B. Increase the MTU size and use Multi-TEP with high-speed NICs.
- C. Keep the MTU size constant and reduce NIC speed.
- D. Increase the MTU size but use only a single TEP.

Answer: B

Explanation:

* Increase MTU & Multi-TEP (Correct Answer - B):

* Increasing the MTU size (Jumbo Frames 1600-9000 bytes) helps reduce fragmentation and improve Geneve performance.

* Multi-TEP (Tunnel Endpoints) enables load balancing of overlay traffic across multiple NICs, enhancing throughput.

* High-speed NICs (25G/40G/100G) improve data plane performance by reducing packet processing overhead.

* Incorrect Options:

* (A - MTU Increase But Single TEP):

* A single TEP creates a bottleneck as all overlay traffic is routed through one NIC.

* (C - Decrease MTU & Use Single TEP):

* Reducing MTU increases fragmentation, negatively impacting performance.

* (D - Keep MTU & Reduce NIC Speed):

* Slower NIC speeds increase latency and reduce throughput, which contradicts the goal.

NEW QUESTION # 116

What is a benefit of using a multi-tier architecture for providing control over stateful service location in NSX?

- A. Reduces the number of NSX Edge nodes required.
- B. Simplifies the deployment and configuration of stateful services.
- C. Allows for granular control of traffic flow.
- D. Provides better performance and scalability than other architectures.

Answer: C

Explanation:

* Multi-Tier Architecture for Stateful Services (Correct Answer - A):

- * Multi-tier NSX architecture (T0-T1) provides granular traffic control by allowing separation of stateful services (e.g., NAT, Load Balancer, Firewall).
 - * It optimizes traffic flow between different application tiers, preventing unnecessary stateful service processing at the Tier-0 Gateway.
 - * Incorrect Options:
 - * (B - Better Performance and Scalability):
 - * Performance depends on deployment design rather than the number of tiers.
 - * (C - Simplifies Stateful Service Deployment):
 - * Stateful services still require specific placement, making configuration more structured, not necessarily simpler.
 - * (D - Reduces NSX Edge Nodes Required):
 - * Edge node requirements depend on workload size, not the number of tiers.

NEW QUESTION # 117

How do enterprise and service provider NSX designs typically differ?

- A. There are no significant differences
- B. By the color scheme of the UI
- C. Service provider designs prioritize multi-tenancy and scalability
- D. Enterprise designs focus more on internal data center optimizations

Answer: C,D

NEW QUESTION # 118

SSL Offload is beneficial because it?

- A. Decreases the CPU utilization on server-side for SSL/TLS processing
- B. Reduces the workload on the client's browser
- C. Simplifies the SSL certificate management process
- D. Increases the encryption strength automatically

Answer: A
