- D. It ensures all projects are untethered for greater flexibility

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 49

In which situation would you specifically label nodes for DB2 workloads?

- A. When node differentiation is unnecessary
- B. For reducing overall system performance
- C. To distinguish between different data or workload types
- D. When all nodes are utilized for identical tasks

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 50

In DataStage, how is workload management typically achieved?

- A. By prioritizing workloads based solely on data volume
- B. Through an automated, policy-driven approach
- C. By employing external workload management tools
- D. By manually distributing tasks across nodes

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 51

What does Watson OpenScale require to generate statistics?

- A. Test data subset (10%)
- B. Access to Pipeline
- C. Complete test data set
- D. Training data

Answer: D

Explanation:

* Training Data Statistics: Watson OpenScale needs to understand the characteristics of the data the model was trained on. This includes things like the distribution of features, sensitive attributes (for fairness monitoring), and how the model performed on this initial data. These "training data statistics" are crucial for:

* Fairness Configuration: Recommending fairness attributes, reference, and monitored groups.

* Bias Detection: Calculating fairness metrics (like disparate impact) by comparing runtime behavior to the learned training data distribution.

* Explainability: Generating explanations by understanding the distribution of values in the training data to create meaningful perturbations.

* Drift Detection: Building a drift detection model that compares runtime data to the training data to identify shifts.

While Watson OpenScale also consumes payload data (the data sent to the deployed model for predictions) at runtime to calculate various metrics and perform monitoring, the initial setup and the ability to generate meaningful statistics for things like fairness and drift fundamentally rely on understanding the training data

NEW QUESTION # 52

What is the purpose of configuring access to a Git repository associated with a project in Cloud Pak for Data?

- A. To enhance data visualization in JupyterLab or RStudio.
- B. To delete the repository and create a new one.
- C. To manage the deployment of a model to a project space.
- D. To collaborate with others, manage file versions, and enable branching.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Configuring access to a Git repository in Cloud Pak for Data projects allows teams to collaborate on code, notebooks, and assets while benefiting from version control and branching. This setup ensures that all project files can be tracked, reverted, or merged, enabling collaborative development and continuous integration workflows. It is not used for model deployment management (B) or visualization enhancements (C). Option D is unrelated to the actual purpose of Git integration.
