NEW QUESTION #698

IP multicast effectively conserves network bandwidth and reduces network load. Therefore, it is widely used in network services, such as IPTV, real-time data transmission, and multimedia conferencing.

- A. FALSE
- B. TRUE

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Step-by-Step Explanation:

1. Overview of IP Multicast:

IP multicast is a method of delivering data from one source to multiple destinations simultaneously.

Unlike unicast (one-to-one communication) or broadcast (one-to-all communication), multicast isone-to- many, allowing data to be sent only to subscribers (multicast group members).

This significantly conserves bandwidth and reduces the load on the network because the source only sends a single stream of data, which is replicated by multicast routers as needed.

2. Use Cases for IP Multicast:

IP multicast is widely used in network services that involve real-time or large-scale data delivery, such as:

IPTV (Internet Protocol Television):Broadcasting live TV streams.

Real-Time Data Transmission:Delivering stock market data, sensor updates, etc.

Multimedia Conferencing: Supporting group calls, webinars, and online meetings.

3. Why the Statement is TRUE:

IP multicast reduces unnecessary traffic and maximizes efficiency, making it ideal for these types of network services. Reference:

NEW QUESTION #699

RSTP provides different functions in different scenarios. Which of the following statements Is false?

- A. When the designated port enabled with root protection receives optimal RST BPDUs, the port enters the Discarding state and does not forward packets. If the port does not receive optimal RST BPDUs within a certain period of time, the port will automatically restore to the Forwarding state
- B. The role of the designated port that is enabled with root protection cannot be changed
- C. After TC-BPDU attack defense function is enabled, you can set the number of times the switch processes TC BPDUs within a certain period
- D. If the edge port on the switch enabled with BPDU protection receives RST BPDU, the switch sets the edge port as a non-edge-port and triggers STP calculation

Answer: B

Explanation:

Root protection ensures that a designated port does not become a root port by discarding superior BPDUs.

However, if superior BPDUs are no longer received, the port can return to its original forwarding state, meaning its role can change. This makes option B incorrect, while the other options correctly describe RSTP behavior .

NEW QUESTION #700

In RSTP, many optional protection functions are set to prevent the Layer 2 network from being invaded by malicious users. So which of the following descriptions about TC-BPDU functions are correct? (Multiple choice)

- A. After this function is enabled, for other TC BPDU packets that exceed the threshold, the device only processes them once after the timer expires
- B. The anti-TC-BPDU attack function can be configured and enabled on all interfaces
- C. By default, the time required for the device to process the maximum number of topology change packets is Hello Time
- D. By default, the maximum number of topology change packets processed by the device within a specified time is 2

Answer: A,C
