IIA Essentials of Internal Auditing Sample Questions (Q761-Q766):

NEW QUESTION # 761

The accounting department asked the chief audit executive (CAE) to perform a review of suspicious transactions. The CAE was an accounting manager for the organization six months ago. How should she respond to the request?

- A. Accept, it is a consulting engagement with agreed-upon scope and services to be provided by the internal audit activity.
- B. Accept, it is an assurance engagement, as she has been out of the department long enough to not impair objectivity.
- C. Decline, if it is consulting engagement because she recently worked in the organization's accounting department.
- D. Inform the accounting department that the engagement can take place in the future once she has been removed from accounting for a longer period of time.

Answer: C

Explanation:

The chief audit executive (CAE) should decline the request to perform a review of suspicious transactions if it is a consulting engagement, particularly because she recently worked in the organization's accounting department. The close temporal proximity (six months ago) between her managerial role in the department and the present could impair her objectivity and independence in evaluating the transactions. NEW QUESTION # 762

Which of the following preventative controls would be most effective for organizations facing business disruptions and respective financial losses?

- A. Rely on third-party cloud solution providers for the organization's systems.
- B. Develop a business continuity plan for contingent situations.
- C. Insure the organization against financial losses.
- D. Hedge company assets via purchasing derivatives.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 763

Senior management asks the chief audit executive to review the organization's compliance with recently introduced legislation on international transfer pricing. The review requires an internal auditor who thoroughly understands the legislation and pricing methods. The internal audit activity does not have an auditor with those skills. Which of the following is the most appropriate course of action?

- A. Decline to perform the engagement, as the internal audit activity does not have the appropriate skill set.
- B. Outsource the engagement to an external audit firm that has appropriate skills.
- C. Recruit a lawyer with knowledge of the legislation to the audit team and ask the new auditor to perform the engagement.
- D. Carry out the engagement using existing internal audit staff to help them gain the appropriate experience.

Answer: B

Explanation:

When the internal audit activity does not have the appropriate skills to review the organization's compliance with recently introduced legislation on international transfer pricing, the most appropriate course of action is to outsource the engagement to an external audit firm that has the necessary expertise. This ensures that the review is conducted thoroughly and accurately by professionals with specialized knowledge, maintaining the quality and reliability of the audit work while addressing the specific requirements of the engagement.
