ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager Sample Questions (Q176-Q181):

NEW QUESTION # 176

You are considering involving users during test execution. In general, what is the main reason for involving users during test execution? 1 credit

- A. They have the ability to also focus on invalid test cases
- B. This can serve as a way to build their confidence in the system
- C. They have good testing skills
- D. They are a cheap resource

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 177

When scheduling performance testing, which of the following approaches would be most advisable? [1]

- A. Requiring all performance tests to pass before starting functional testing
- B. Leveraging end users to do unit-level performance testing and automated tools for system-level performance testing
- C. Deferring the start of performance testing until all functional defects have been resolved
- D. Starting the performance testing during unit and integration testing

Answer: D

Explanation:

Performance testing is the process of determining the speed, responsiveness, and stability of a system under a given workload1. Performance testing should be started as early as possible in the software development lifecycle, preferably during unit and integration testing, to identify and resolve performance issues before they become costly or risky2. Starting performance testing early can also help to validate the performance requirements, design, and architecture of the system, as well as to optimize the performance testing strategy and scope3. Therefore, option A is the correct answer. Option B is incorrect because deferring the start of performance testing until all functional defects have been resolved can delay the detection and resolution of performance issues, increase the cost and effort of performance testing, and reduce the confidence and quality of the system4. Option C is incorrect because leveraging end users to do unit-level performance testing and automated tools for system-level performance testing can introduce inconsistency, bias, and inefficiency in the performance testing process, as well as compromise the reliability and validity of the performance test results. Option D is incorrect because requiring all performance tests to pass before starting functional testing can create unrealistic or unnecessary expectations, as well as hinder the progress and feedback of the functional testing activities. NEW QUESTION # 178

You are the Test Manager on a project to replace an old sales and merchandising system with one that will be based on modern platforms It will be developed using an Agile lifecycle.

The main requirements for the system are:

- * Loading sales data, sent electronically from the stores each evening, into a central database.
- * Producing sales reports for the merchandisers, whose job is to manage stock levels in stores.
- * Producing forecast reports, used to predict demand for each product, based on a combination of sales history and forecasting parameters. The parameters will be entered by the merchandisers into a browser based front end and the reports will be produced overnight. Requirements 1 and 2 are satisfied by the existing system and will be rewritten with no significant changes. Requirement 3 is new. The Data Centre Manager is concerned about the performance of overnight batch processing and the Sales and Merchandising Manager is concerned about usability. Both managers have indicated that they are keen to allocate resources to acceptance testing. You have already determined that component and component integration testing will be done by developers before any other testing.

Which option contains TWO items that would complete your test approach in respect of test levels?

- A. System testing will be achieved by a combination of the testing that is needed for each user story's Definition of Done, and the testing on the iteration as a whole which will be needed for each iteration's Definition of Done.
- B. Preliminary acceptance will be done by the Product Owner during the demonstration at the end of each iteration, user acceptance testing and operational acceptance testing will each be conducted as a separately planned exercise in parallel with the final Iteration of each release.
- C. User and operational acceptance testing will be done by inviting representatives from the user department and the Data Centre to an extended demonstration on the last afternoon of the final iteration before release, in which they can run tests in the team's test environment.
- D. System testing will be performed as a series of work items that will each be placed in the product backlog as an individual user story and selected during iteration planning according to its priority relative to other user stories.
- E. User acceptance testing and operational acceptance testing will be placed in the product backlog as user stories and conducted as separate exercises in parallel with the final iteration of each release.
- F. Acceptance testing will be done by the Product Owner during the demonstration at the end of each iteration, to which representatives from the user department and the Data Centre will be invited to observe.

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

In Agile projects, system testing is typically covered within each iteration as part of the "Definition of Done", with test tasks tied to each user story, ensuring system-level concerns like performance and usability are addressed.

Additionally, user and operational acceptance testing are planned as separate activities to confirm business and operational readiness. This supports real stakeholder validation near release.

This approach aligns with the ISTQB syllabus which states that testing levels (like system and acceptance) should be planned with appropriate responsibilities and definitions (Definition of Done) in Agile contexts.

NEW QUESTION # 179

You are the Test Manager of a risk-based testing effort. You develop the following graph to show residual risk. Assume that "Risks mitigated" represents passed tests and "Risks not mitigated" represents failed tests and other discovered failures.

Which of the following answers best represents what the graph shows? [3]

- A. Project is on schedule based on total number of test cases executed
- B. Project is at risk due to the number of failed tests
- C. Project is behind schedule based on bug fix rate

- D. Project is ahead of schedule due to number of risks addressed

Answer: B

Explanation:

The graph indicates that a significant portion of risks, 29%, have not been mitigated, which suggests that these are either failed tests or other discovered failures. This level of unmitigated risk puts the project at risk, as it implies that there are still substantial issues that need to be addressed.

References: The ISTQB Advanced Level Test Manager documents outline the importance of risk-based testing and the interpretation of residual risk graphs. These graphs are used to communicate the current status of risk mitigation efforts in the project, and a high percentage of unmitigated risks is a clear indicator of potential problems¹.

NEW QUESTION # 180

You are about to release a test progress report to a senior manager, who is not a test specialist. Which of the following topics should NOT be included in the test progress report? 1 credit

- A. Product risks which have been mitigated and those which are outstanding.
- B. Status compared against the started exit criteria
- C. Recommendations for taking controlling actions
- D. Detailed overview of the risk-based test approach being used to ensure the exit criteria to be achieved

Answer: D
