- A. The extraction confidence and the digitization confidence.
- B. The position on the page.
- C. The number of occurrences and the extraction confidence.
- D. The page number from which the field was extracted and the exact position on the page.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 121

In which of the following scenarios, the ML Classifier is the only recommended classifier to be used, according to best practice?

- A. When the custom document types are very similar and file splitting is necessary.
- B. When the custom document types are very similar and file splitting is not necessary.
- C. When the custom document types are not similar and file splitting is not necessary.
- D. When the custom document types are not similar and file splitting is necessary.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The ML Classifier is a document classifier that uses a machine learning model deployed as an ML Skill in AI Center to perform document classification tasks. The ML Classifier can work by default with Invoices, Purchase Orders, Receipts, and Utility Bills, or with custom document types that are trained using the Data Manager and the Machine Learning Classifier Trainer¹2.

According to the best practice, the ML Classifier is the only recommended classifier to be used when the custom document types are very similar and file splitting is not necessary. This is because the ML Classifier can handle complex and ambiguous cases where the document types are hard to distinguish by rules or keywords, and can also learn from feedback and improve over time. File splitting is not necessary when the documents are single-page or have a consistent number of pages per document type³.

The other options are not correct because they are scenarios where other classifiers, such as the Keyword Based Classifier or the Intelligent Keyword Classifier, can be used in combination with the ML Classifier or instead of it. These classifiers are based on rules or keywords that can identify the document types based on their content or metadata, and can also perform file splitting if the documents are multi-page or have a variable number of pages per document type³.

NEW QUESTION # 122

When a parent label is deleted in UiPath Communications Mining, what happens to the training data for that label?

- A. The parent label and any child labels to that parent label are removed from any reviewed messages, any messages with updated annotations are flagged for review.
- B. The parent label and any child labels to that parent label are removed from any reviewed messages.
- C. The parent label is removed from any reviewed messages but the child labels to that parent label remain.
- D. The parent label is removed from any reviewed messages, messages with any child labels to that parent label are flagged for review.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In UiPath Communications Mining, when a parent label is deleted, both the parent and its child labels are removed from the reviewed messages. Additionally, any messages with updated annotations that were associated with those labels are flagged for review to ensure consistency in the training data.

NEW QUESTION # 123

When creating a training dataset, what is the recommended number of samples for the Classification fields?

- A. 50-200 document samples from each class.
- B. 5-10 document samples from each class.
- C. 20-50 document samples from each class.
- D. 10-20 document samples from each class.

Answer: C

Explanation:

According to the UiPath documentation, the recommended number of samples for the classification fields depends on the number of document types and layouts that you want to classify. The more document types and layouts you have, the more samples you need to cover the diversity of your data. However, a general guideline is to have at least 20-50 document samples from each class, as this would provide enough data for the classifiers to learn from¹. A large number of samples per layout is not mandatory, as the classifiers can generalize from other layouts as well³.
