What are two basic rules Check Point recommends for building an effective policy?

- A. Cleanup and Stealth Rule
- B. Implicit and Explicit Rules
- C. VPN and Admin Rules
- D. Access and Identity Rules

Answer: A

Explanation:

Cleanup and Stealth Rules

There are two basic rules that Check Point recommends for building an effective Security Policy: the Cleanup rule and the Stealth rule. Both the Cleanup and Stealth rules are important for creating basic security measures and tracking important information.

- Cleanup Rule — A Cleanup rule is recommended to determine how to handle connections not matched by the rules above it in the Rulebase. It is also necessary for logging this traffic. Cleanup rules can be configured to allow or drop the connection. It should always be placed at the bottom of the Rulebase.

- Stealth Rule — A stealth rule is a rule that should be located as early in your policy as possible, typically immediately after any Management rules. The purpose of this is to drop any traffic destined for the Firewall that is not otherwise explicitly allowed.

In most cases, the Stealth rule should be placed above all other rules. Placing the Stealth rule among the first rules protects the gateway from port scanning, spoofing, and other types of direct attacks. Connections that need to be made directly to the gateway, such as Client Authentication, encryption, and Content Vectoring Protocol (CVP) rules, always go above the Stealth rule.
