IBM watsonx Generative AI Engineer - Associate Sample Questions (Q60-Q65):

NEW QUESTION # 60

When preparing a dataset for fine-tuning a large language model for a named entity recognition (NER) task, which of the following preprocessing steps is most critical for ensuring accurate entity classification?

- A. Ensure proper tokenization of the dataset according to the model's vocabulary
- B. Use sentence segmentation to isolate each named entity in its own sentence
- C. Remove rare entities to improve model performance on common entities
- D. Randomly shuffle the dataset before training to increase diversity

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 61

A large language model you are fine-tuning occasionally generates completely fabricated references and citations when responding to user queries. This behavior exemplifies a specific model risk.

Which of the following techniques would most effectively reduce this risk in a production environment?

- A. Switching to greedy decoding for more deterministic responses
- B. Using human-in-the-loop (HITL) methods for real-time validation
- C. Deploying rule-based post-processing filters to validate the output
- D. Increasing the model's response diversity by adjusting top-p sampling

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 62

You are deploying a generative AI model to summarize legal documents. During testing, you observe that the model sometimes produces inaccurate or fabricated information about legal clauses that do not exist in the original document.

Which of the following strategies would be the most effective in reducing hallucinations in the model's output?

- A. Implement a post-processing step that filters for factual accuracy using a knowledge base.
- B. Use beam search with a high beam width to generate the most likely sequence.
- C. Reduce the maximum token limit and set a higher repetition penalty.
- D. Increase the model's temperature to allow for more diverse outputs.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 63

In developing an LLM-based conversational AI application using LangChain, you want the AI to perform complex tasks, such as answering questions based on dynamic knowledge from multiple sources (e.g., databases, APIs, etc.).

Which approach using LangChain best supports this requirement by combining various tools into a structured workflow for the AI to follow?

- A. Build a chain of multiple LangChain agents, each handling a specific task (e.g., querying an API, accessing a database) to ensure data from various sources is used effectively.
- B. Create a LangChain chain that connects different tools (e.g., API access, database queries) in a sequential or branching manner to process and combine data dynamically.
- C. Use a single LangChain agent to directly query all external data sources, allowing it to gather information on demand.
- D. Integrate LangChain memory with an agent to handle all external data retrieval without needing to build complex chains.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 64

In the context of model quantization for generative AI, which of the following statements correctly describes the impact of quantization techniques on model performance and resource efficiency? (Select two)

- A. Quantization can increase the inference time of a model since it adds computational complexity when converting from higher to lower precision formats during runtime.
- B. Post-training quantization is more resource-efficient than quantization-aware training, as it applies quantization after the model has been fully trained, eliminating the need for additional fine-tuning.
- C. Quantization-aware training (QAT) can help mitigate the accuracy degradation that occurs during quantization by simulating lower precision during the training process.
- D. Quantizing a model to 8-bit precision always results in a significant loss in performance, especially when working with language models or large generative AI architectures.
- E. Quantization reduces the precision of model weights and activations, allowing for lower memory usage and faster computation with minimal impact on model accuracy.

Answer: C,E
