NEW QUESTION # 354
A company produced and sold 100.000 units of a component with a variable cost of US $20 per unit Of the units produced. 1,200 failed the company's tolerance specifications and were reworked at a cost of US $12 per unit. Reworked units were sold as factory seconds at US $45 each and first-quality units were sold at US $50 each. If the company had implemented a quality assurance program to ensure that all units produced conformed to specifications, the increase in the company's contribution margin from this component would have been:

- A. US $20,400
- B. US $14,400
- C. US $39,600
- D. US $21,600

Answer: A

Explanation:
Both the cost of rework and the income lost when units were sold as factory seconds rather than first-quality units need to be included in the, calculation The following is the appropriate calculation: [US $12 + $50 'i45)] x 1.200 = US $20,400.

NEW QUESTION # 355
A comp, any with three prod. Is classifies its costs as belonging to five functions: design, production, marketing, distribution and customer services. For pricing purposes, all company costs are assigned to the three products. The direct costs of each of the five functions are traced directly to the three products. The indirect costs of each of the five business functions are collected into five separate cost pools and then assigned to the three products using appropriate allocation bases. The allocation base that will most likely be the best for allocating the indirect costs of the distribution function is

- A. Number of customer phone calls.
- B. Number of sales persons.
- C. Number of shipments.
- D. Dollar sales volume.

Answer: C

Explanation:
The number of shipments is an appropriate cost driver. A cause-and-effect relationship may exist between the number of shipments and distribution costs.

NEW QUESTION # 356
The operating condition that car-or-mot be identified by using a queuing model is the:

- A. Probability of a specified number of units in the queue.
- B. Actual amount of time each unit spends in the queue.
- C. Average percentage of time that a service facility is idle.
- D. Average number of units in the system and the mean length of the queue.

Answer: B

Explanation:
Queuing models determine the operating characteristics of a waiting line: the probability that no units are in the system, the average units in the line, the average units in the system, the average time a unit waits, the average time a unit is in the system, the probability that a unit must wait, and the probability of a given number of units in the system. However, the actual time spent in the queue cannot be determined from the model.

NEW QUESTION # 357
According to 11A guidance on it; which of the following statements is true regarding websites used in e- commerce transactions?

- A. HTTP sites provide sufficient security to protect customers' credit card information.
- B. Payment gatewaysauthorizecredit cardonlinepayments.
- C. Database servers send cardholders' information for authorization in clear text.
- D. Web servers store credit cardholders' information submitted for payment.

Answer: B

Explanation:
E-commerce transactions involve multiple security layers to ensure the protection of customers' sensitive financial information. The correct answer is D, as payment gateways serve as intermediaries that authorize online credit card transactions by securely transmitting the payment details to the bank or card networks for approval. Let's examine each option carefully:
* Option A: HTTP sites provide sufficient security to protect customers' credit card information.
* Incorrect. HyperText Transfer Protocol (HTTP) does not provide encryption, meaning that data transmitted over an HTTP connection can be intercepted by malicious actors. Instead, Secure HTTP (HTTPS), which uses Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) or Transport Layer Security (TLS), is required to encrypt the data.
* IIA Reference: Internal auditors evaluating e-commerce security should verify that organizations use HTTPS for secure transactions. (IIA GTAG: Information Security Governance)
* Option B: Web servers store credit cardholders' information submitted for payment.
* Incorrect. While web servers may temporarily process customer data, they should not store sensitive credit card information due to security risks. Instead, organizations follow the Payment Card Industry Data Security Standard (PCI DSS), which mandates secure storage and encryption protocols.
* IIA Reference: IIA Standards recommend compliance with PCI DSS to protect sensitive payment information. (IIA Practice Guide: Auditing IT Governance)
* Option C: Database servers send cardholders' information for authorization in clear text.
* Incorrect. Transmitting cardholder data in clear text is a severe security vulnerability. Secure encryption protocols such as SSL/TLS or tokenization must be used to protect data in transit.
* IIA Reference: Internal auditors should ensure encryption measures are in place for financial transactions. (IIA GTAG: Auditing Cybersecurity Risk)
* Option D: Payment gateways authorize credit card online payments.
* Correct. Payment gateways act as secure intermediaries between merchants and payment processors, verifying the transaction details before authorization. This ensures a secure transaction by encrypting sensitive data before transmitting it for approval.
* IIA Reference: IIA guidance on IT controls emphasizes the importance of secure payment processing through payment gateways. (IIA GTAG: Managing and Auditing IT Vulnerabilities)
