Scrum Professional Scrum Product Owner II Sample Questions (Q64-Q69):

NEW QUESTION # 64

What can be measures of internal value? (choose all that apply)

- A. On-Product Index
- B. Time spent context-switching
- C. Employee Satisfaction
- D. Cycle Time
- E. Customer or user satisfaction gap

Answer: A,B,C,D

NEW QUESTION # 65

Which of the following is true about Scrum?
(choose all that apply)

- A. Scrum is like traditional processes but with self-management to replace Project Managers.
- B. Scrum is based on empiricism.
- C. Each component of Scrum serves a specific purpose and is essential to the successful usage of Scrum for building complex products.
- D. Scrum is a methodology, where you can "pick and choose" which parts of Scrum you think will work for your environment.
- E. Scrum is a framework for generating value through adaptive solutions for complex problems.

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:

Scrum is a lightweight framework that helps people, teams and organizations generate value through adaptive solutions for complex problems. Scrum consists of three roles (Scrum Master, Product Owner and Developers), five events (Sprint, Sprint Planning, Daily Scrum, Sprint Review and Sprint Retrospective), and three artifacts (Product Backlog, Sprint Backlog and Increment). Each component of Scrum serves a specific purpose and is essential to the successful usage of Scrum. Scrum is not a methodology, where you can "pick and choose" which parts of Scrum you think will work for your environment. Scrum is a whole, and each part of Scrum complements the others. Scrum is based on empiricism, which means that knowledge comes from experience and making decisions based on what is observed. Scrum employs an iterative, incremental approach to optimize predictability and control risk. Scrum is not like traditional processes but with self-management to replace Project Managers. Scrum is a different way of working that requires a shift in mindset and culture. Scrum promotes self-organization, collaboration, transparency, inspection and adaptation.

NEW QUESTION # 66

You started measuring product feature usage in your last release. You are surprised to learn that a sizable percentage of the features you thought were very important are never or rarely used.

Which of the following actions could you take to further evaluate this unexpected result?
(choose all that apply)

- A. Run experiments to increase your understanding of what customers find valuable.
- B. Examine whether the rarely used features solve the intended problem.
- C. Spend more time talking to users to identify the impact they seek.

- D. Disable the features that have never been used and listen for feedback.

Answer: A,B,C

Explanation:

Option A is correct because talking to users is one of the best ways to understand their needs, goals, and pain points. By spending more time with them, you can identify the impact they seek from your product and how your features align with that impact. This will help you validate your assumptions and learn from your customers¹².

Option B is incorrect because disabling features that have never been used is a risky and potentially harmful action. It may cause frustration and confusion for the users who rely on those features, or who may want to use them in the future. It may also damage your reputation and trust with your customers. Instead of disabling features, you should seek feedback from your users and understand why they are not using them³⁴.

Option C is correct because running experiments is a powerful way to increase your understanding of what customers find valuable. By testing different hypotheses and measuring the outcomes, you can learn from your data and evidence. You can also use experiments to validate your ideas and assumptions before investing in building features⁵.

Option D is correct because examining whether the rarely used features solve the intended problem is a crucial step to evaluate your product performance. You should review your product vision and goals, and assess how your features contribute to them. You should also analyze the feedback and data you have collected from your users and stakeholders, and identify any gaps or mismatches between your features and their needs.

- A. Checking the work of the Developers.
- B. There is no specific tester role
- C. Creating code coverage reports for the test manager.
- D. Finding bugs to assure quality
- E. Everyone on the Scrum Team is accountable for the quality of the product.

Answer: B,E

NEW QUESTION # 68

The report shows that most of the features in the latest release are either never used or hardly used at all.

What should you do to evaluate this situation? (choose all that apply)

- A. Evaluate whether the rarely used features solve the intended problem.
- B. Run experiments to find what is valuable to customers.
- C. Disable the features that are not giving value.
- D. Spend more time talking with your users to understand their needs.

Answer: A,B,D
