BCS ISTQB Certified Tester Foundation Level CTFL 4.0 Sample Questions (Q40-Q45):

NEW QUESTION # 40

Which ONE of the following options BEST describes black-box test techniques?

- A. In black-box testing techniques, test cases are created based on the software's implementation.
- B. Black-box testing techniques involve analyzing the specified behavior of the test object without knowledge of its internal structure.
- C. Black-box testing techniques are based on analyzing the test object's specified and implied behavior without knowledge of its internal data structure.
- D. Black-box testing techniques are based on experience with the test object without knowing the internal structure.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed In-Depth Explanation: Black-box testing techniques focus on testing the functionality of the software without knowledge of its internal workings (D). They derive test cases from specifications, requirements, or expected behavior. Option A describes exploratory testing, B contradicts the definition by focusing on implementation, and C incorrectly includes

"implied behavior," which is not a core characteristic of black-box testing.

NEW QUESTION # 41

Exploratory testing is an experience-based test technique

- A. That aims at finding defects by designing tests that exercise all possible combinations of input values and preconditions
- B. That can be organised into sessions guided by test charters outlining test objectives that will guide the testers' exploration
- C. Where a developer and a tester work together on the same workstation while the developer actively writes code, the tester explores the code to find defects.
- D. Where a team of testers explores all possible test techniques in order to determine the most suitable combination of these techniques to apply for a test project.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Exploratory testing is an experience-based test technique where testers actively engage with the software, learning about its behavior while simultaneously designing and executing tests. According to the ISTQB CTFL syllabus, exploratory testing can be structured into sessions guided by test charters, which outline the test objectives and provide direction for the testers' exploration. This method is particularly useful in situations where test documentation is limited or where rapid feedback is needed. Thus, option B correctly describes how exploratory testing can be organized.

NEW QUESTION # 42

Which of the following characterizations applies to a test tool used for the analysis of a developer's code prior to its execution?

- A. Tool support for performance measurement and dynamic analysis.
- B. Tool support for static testing.
- C. Tool support for test execution and logging.
- D. Tool support for test design and implementation.

Answer: B

Explanation:

A test tool used for the analysis of a developer's code prior to its execution falls under the category of static testing tools. Static testing involves examining the code and documentation without executing the code. These tools are used to perform static analysis, which helps in identifying potential defects and code quality issues early in the development process. The ISTQB CTFL syllabus specifies that static analysis tools are essential for finding defects that do not manifest themselves during the execution of the program.

NEW QUESTION # 43

Which of the following statements about static testing and dynamic testing is true?

- A. Static testing is usually much less cost-effective than dynamic testing
- B. Unlike dynamic testing, which can be also performed manually, static testing cannot be performed without specialized tools
- C. Unlike dynamic testing, which focuses on detecting potential defects, static testing focuses on detecting failures which may be due to actual defects
- D. Both static testing and dynamic testing can be used to highlight issues associated with non-functional characteristics

Answer: D

Explanation:

This answer is correct because static testing and dynamic testing are both types of testing that can be used to highlight issues associated with non-functional characteristics, such as usability, performance, security, reliability, etc. Static testing is a type of testing that involves the analysis of software work products, such as requirements, design, code, or test cases, without executing them. Dynamic testing is a type of testing that involves the execution of software work products, such as code or test cases, using inputs and verifying outputs. Both static testing and dynamic testing can be applied to different test levels and test types, and can use different test techniques and tools, to evaluate the non-functional characteristics of the software product. #### NEW QUESTION # 44

The following state transition diagram describes the functionality involved in a system using fingerprint and password authentication to log onto a system.

How many distinct states of the system are visible in the above diagram?

- A. 0
- B. 1
- C. 2
- D. 3

Answer: A

Explanation:

The state transition diagram provided shows three distinct states:

- * Waiting for fingerprint
- * Waiting for PIN
- * Valid PIN/ask menu selection

Each state represents a different stage in the system's operation, with transitions based on user actions and system responses.
